Budget Hearing
Change StudiedBy DON WALTON
Star Staff Writer

Breaking with past precedent, the Legislature's Appropriations Committee may begin formal hearings on state agency budget requests next month.

If the committee decides to pursue that approach, it could complete the major hearings before the 1972 Unicameral convenes.

"We might be ready to introduce a budget bill by the time the session starts," Sen. Richard Marvel of Hastings noted Wednesday.

To Be Discussed

Marvel said the pre-session hearing proposal will be discussed by his committee during two days of meetings this week which will complete its tour of state government institutions throughout Nebraska.

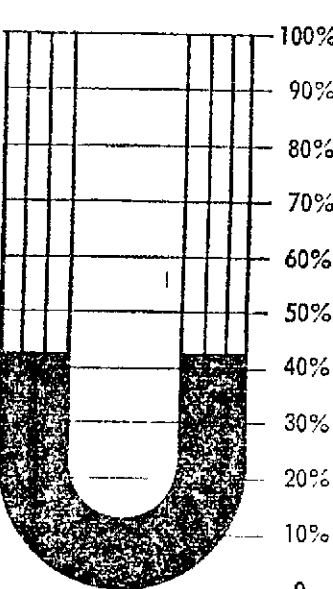

Budget hearings have always been held while the Legislature was in session.

"But we're plowing new ground this time and we had better be ready," Marvel noted.

Only 60 Days

The 1972 Legislature is limited to only 60 days in session — unless four-fifths of its members should vote to extend the session beyond that time.

Assuming it ends after 60 legislative days, that will mark it as the shortest regular session since 1885.

The Appropriations Committee was unable to get a budget bill to the floor for debate until the 72nd day of the 90-day 1971 session.

To Move Rapidly

Thus, Marvel noted, "we've got to move as rapidly as possible to make it this time."

The committee will visit facilities at the Beatrice State Home for the mentally retarded, the state vocational technical school at Milford and the Lincoln Technical College Thursday.

On Friday, the committee will huddle with University of Nebraska administrators on the Lincoln campus.

Senators will tour the campus Friday afternoon, visiting Love Library, the College of Law and the University's life sciences facilities.

Number One

"As far as I'm concerned, the library is Priority Number One," Marvel said.

The committee has met previously with university officials at the Medical Center and the university's life at Omaha.

"We're going to talk to Lincoln campus officials about their new budget request and about what they've been allocated this time," Marvel said.

One key factor which needs discussion and study is "the reason for the increase in enrollment," at Lincoln, he said.

Out of the Way

If formal hearings are launched next month, Marvel said, "I hope we can have all of them out of the way by the time the Legislature convenes next January."

Sen. Wayne Ziebarth's announcement Tuesday that he may resign his seat in the Legislature to pursue the Democratic nomination for the U.S. Senate raises the possibility of a vacancy on the Appropriations Committee.

If Ziebarth should leave the Legislature, his seat on the committee would be filled by a senator nominated by the Committee on Committees and confirmed by the full Legislature.

Ziebarth's successor in the Legislature — he would be named by Gov. J. James Exon — would not automatically assume his committee assignments.

CUBA CRITICIZES U.S.

Travel Bar
'Arbitrary'

... SAYS HAVANA

By The Associated Press

Cuba accused the United States Wednesday of "arbitrary and discriminatory action" in prohibiting a Cuban delegation from participating in an international sugar conference in Louisiana.

While the would-be Cuban delegates to the conference sat in a hotel near the New Orleans Airport, two American jets flew to Havana and took 221 passengers from a hijacked American Airlines 747 jumbo jet to Puerto Rico — their destination before a gunman took over the flight after it left New York Monday night.

The 707 and 727 jets which carried the stranded Americans from Havana to San Juan touched down in Puerto Rico within five minutes of each other.

The Fidel Castro regime declared that the 19 Cuban sugar technicians now in New Orleans after flying there uninvited Tuesday were willing "to assume any risks" while insisting on their "legitimate rights."

Although ordered by U.S. officials to return to Cuba, the technicians refused to do so.

A State Department spokesman in Washington said the Cuban government had indicated the condition of the single runway at the Havana airport made it unsafe for the jumbo jet to take off with a full load.

Soviet Premier In Cuba

The developments came as Soviet Premier Alexei Kosygin continued his visit to Cuba.

Kosygin flew into Jose Marti International Airport Tuesday while the American Airlines plane sat on the runway. Its crew and passengers, which included three sky marshals and an off-duty FBI agent, were lodged in a Havana hotel.

As a principle Cubans get U.S. visas only if their visit is in connection with the affairs of an international organization, such as the United Nations, of which Cuba is a member. The New Orleans meeting was arranged by a private organization, officials said.

They said the Cuban policy concerning visas for Americans is quite different and it is relatively easy to get a Cuban visa either at the Czech embassy here or at a Cuban embassy abroad if the applicant is agreeable to the Cuban government.

'Yankee Imperialism'

Havana radio monitored in Miami said that for the United States to deny the Cuban technicians visas to enter the country to attend the sugar meeting was "another instance of the arbitrary and imperialistic policy of the Yankee government, abusing its condition as host country to injure our fatherland."

It declared the Cuban people strongly supported the "valiant and appropriate attitude of the Cuban technicians" in their refusal to leave the country.

The State Department said Cuban officials were advised Sept. 24 that visas would not be approved.

To This, Cuba Retorted Wednesday

"Cuba is the world's leading sugar cane producing country and one of the 46 member countries of that international association—the International Society of Sugar Cane Technologists. As such, it has the inalienable right to take part in all its activities and the right that it be guaranteed the possibility of doing so."

Metre Chimes In

In New Orleans, the head of the Cuban delegation, Francis Metre, reiterated the same position and said, "I want to talk person to person with the president of the sugar cane society." Immigration officials prevented the Cubans from doing so.

The group's 19 members and the aircraft's three crewmen were lodged in a New Orleans motel while the conflict was being resolved. The government-controlled Havana radio expressed approval of the refusal by the Cuban pilot, Rey Morilla, to fly the plane back to Cuba. The broadcasts made no mention of the hijacked American airliner.

Meanwhile, the sugar technology convention in New Orleans went on as usual Wednesday, with no changes caused by Cuba's attempt to get a delegation into the proceedings. The convention has drawn some 600 delegates from 53 nations.

"magnal" and the proposed development would overload the sewer system for the area.

However, he noted that if the commission felt that the proposed development is "good for the area, we can develop a system to meet the need," Obering said.

Planning Director Douglas Brodgen had recommended denial of the zoning for numerous reasons including that the change in zone from A-2 Single Family to C Multiple would permit development of a large tract of land of substantially different character than is currently developing to the north, south and east.

The final decision on the zoning, which rests with the City Council, could result in granting the C Multiple sought by Copple, granting the B Two-Family as recommended by the Planning Commission or overall denial.

Rozman's Protest Role Disputed

... CONFLICTING TESTIMONY PRESENTED ON LEADERSHIP

By MILAN WALL
Star Staff Writer

U.S. District Judge Warren Urbom Wednesday heard conflicting testimony on the role played by a former University of Nebraska political science professor in May 1970 antiwar demonstrations on NU's Lincoln campus.

The chairman of a special citizens commission which studied the May events at the request of the NU Board of Regents said former Prof. Stephen Rozman "was in the forerunner group" during the demonstrations.

But Rozman himself testified that he was not a leader in any of the protests on May 4, and the chairman of a special faculty fact-finding committee which exonerated Rozman said the committee's investigation indicated Rozman was not a leader.

Suing Regents

The testimony came in the first of what is estimated to be a three-day trial on Rozman's suit against the regents. Rozman is asking $100,000 and reinstatement to his position as an assistant professor.

The regents voted last February not to renew the untenured teacher's contract, a decision made after several months of discussion on the case and after the faculty investigation.

Rozman led off the first day with testimony that he was a willing participant in peaceful protests at the State Selective headquarters and the NU Military and Naval Science (ROTC) building.

Not a Leader

But he said he was not a leader in the events that led to the occupation of the ROTC building some 15 months ago.

Richard E. Spelts Jr. of Grand Island, chairman of a citizens commission, testified later in the day that Rozman was "in the forerunner group in each situation," referring to the protest at the draft offices, a meeting at a campus religious center and the subsequent march to and occupation of the building.

Attention was drawn to Rozman when the Spelts Commission, in August 1970, transmitted a report to the regents which singled out Rozman for alleged actions "highly inappropriate for a teacher."

Under questioning from Rozman's attorney, Spelts testified that the commission's conclusion was based on commission evidence that Rozman "was in the leading group" during the protests.

But Spelts told attorney Patrick Healey that all the documentation for the conclusion "is in the hands" of Duane Nelson, who served as legal counsel and investigator for the commission.

Asked by Healey if the commission judgment was based on specific remarks by Rozman, Spelts said the commission disregarded all the testimony it gathered on Rozman's remarks.

So Many Opinions

"We got so many opinions of what he said," related Spelts, "that the commission believed it would be unfair to try to document" them.

"How do you know" Rozman was in a position of leadership, Healey asked.

"Because I said so," was Spelts' reply.

Healey also asked if the commission attempted to give Rozman an opportunity to answer charges before it issued its report, and Spelts said, "that wasn't our responsibility."

Excellent Means

Earlier, Rozman had told the court he believed participation in peaceful protests, such as the ROTC sit-in, would be "an excellent means of communication" with President Nixon as a protest of the President's decision to send American troops into Cambodia.

But he said he was not a leader, and he testified that he was not among the first to arrive at either the draft office or the ROTC building.

Henry Holtzclaw, an NU chemistry professor who chaired the special faculty committee, said the committee "did feel his (Rozman's) appearance (at ROTC) was a spontaneous appearance."

"We did not feel he was a planner," Holtzclaw said.

Asked Attitude

Attorney M. J. Bruckner, who acted as legal counsel to the Holtzclaw committee, testified that he asked all five members of the committee during a private meeting with the regents last Feb. 5 for their "attitude" toward Rozman prior to their investigation.

Bruckner said all indicated they had been "leaning against him rather than for him" before they began their study.

Bruckner also said one Bruckner also said one regent, whom he did not name, asked a "ludicrous question" during the gathering, questioning why Rozman's name "kept showing up in the report."

Why Not Vietnam

"The same regent then asked why Rozman was in the (ROTC) building rather than Vietnam or Cambodia," Bruckner said.

He also testified that Regent James Moylan of Omaha called him the afternoon of the informal meeting and asked if there was "enough" to "fire" Rozman.

Bruckner also said Moylan asked him if he would "have this guy working for you in a corporation or business."

Not My Function

Bruckner said he told Moylan it was "not my function" to decide on possible reappointment of Rozman.

And he said he told the regent he would "probably not" hire Rozman in a business "run for profit," possibly because of Rozman's bearded appearance or possible prejudice against his Russian Jewish background.

"But I hardly think that's the question when you run the university," Bruckner related. Universities are not operated for profit, he said, but for a free exchange of ideas.

Nixon Goes To China In Early 1972

Washington (UPI) — White House adviser Henry A. Kissinger said Wednesday President Nixon's trip to Peking will provide an opportunity to make a new beginning in relations with China. The journey will take place early next year and a final date will be announced before Dec. 1.

"The trip is intended to end the isolation from each other of two great peoples," Kissinger told reporters after briefing the President on his six days in the Chinese capital.

The trip will take place sometime after Jan. 1. Other officials said a final announcement of the date would be made before Dec. 1.

Kissinger, who returned Tuesday from conferences with Premier Chou En-Lai, emphasized that "neither side has ever pretended that we will solve all or even most of the differences between us" during just one presidential visit.

"Painful Coincidence" Kissinger dismissed as "a painful coincidence" his presence in Peking at the time the United Nations was voting to seat the Communist government and expel the Nationalist regime on Taiwan.

But Kissinger said, "I do not think my visit affected the vote of any country."

Asked about widespread speculation that China had been rent by an internal power struggle, Kissinger said: "I have no idea whatever about the internal balance in the leadership of the Chinese government or the Chinese Communist Party."

"I wouldn't presume to speculate about what might have happened."

Kissinger did not meet party Chairman Mao Tse-tung but said, "The President is expected to see Chairman Mao."

Kissinger returned from his second mission to Peking late Tuesday, and conferred with Nixon and Secretary of State William P. Rogers for two hours at breakfast Wednesday. Nixon and Kissinger, his national security affairs adviser, then conferred alone in the President's hideaway office in the Executive Office Building.

U.S., China Only

The President's discussions on his trip will center on issues and matters concerning just the United States and mainland China, Kissinger said, and no issues involving other countries will be taken up.

This includes Vietnam, he said. "We expect to settle the Vietnam war either through unilateral action or through negotiation — not through Peking."

Turning to his own trip, Kissinger said his discussions with Chinese delegations were broken into two parts. He said he discussed "substantive" matters with Chou while other members of his group worked on technical arrangements such as security, communications and press coverage.

Altered Zoning Plan Urged For Copple Development

By GERRY SWITZER
Star Staff Writer

The City-County Planning Commission Wednesday denied the C Multiple zoning sought by S. E. Copple for 60 acres south of Capitol Beach Manor but recommended B Two-Family zoning which would restrict density.

On a unanimous vote, commission members voted to approve B Two-Family zoning with the suggestion that Copple present a community unit plan for the development of the proposed condominium units.

Copple, in seeking the C-Multiple zoning, had proposed 980 condominium units in the area south of Capitol Beach Manor and west of North Coddington.

Commission members expressed concern over density problems under the C Multiple zoning which would allow up to 1,800 units on 60 acres with no deduction requirement for streets, etc.

However, the B Two-Family zoning provides for 1,020 units on the 60-acre tract but requires a 20% deduction for streets reducing the maximum number to 836 which Copple could build under the recommended zoning.

Copple told the commission that if he were to take the entire Capitol Beach area and include the lake as part of that area, he could have up to 2,200 units under a community unit plan proposal.

Most commission members expressed favor for such a development in the west section of Lincoln but were hesitant that the density could become a serious problem if as many as 1,800 units were developed on the 60-acre site rather than just the 980 proposed.

Commission member Robert Allington said that under a community unit plan if a developer were to come in proposing 980 units for the tract he felt that it would probably gain approval.

Public Works Director Robert Obering, upon questioning by the commission, said that the existing sewer for the Capitol Beach area is

Washington — Presidential adviser Henry A. Kissinger said President Nixon and his Chinese counterparts hope to restrict their substantive talks during Nixon's forthcoming China visit to issues between the two countries. (More on Page 1.)

China Urged To Send Envoys

United Nations, N.Y. — Mainland China was urged by U.N. Secretary General Thant to send a Security Council representative "as soon as possible" because "a meeting of the Security Council might be called at any moment by the president." A U.N. spokesman said that if China replies by the end of this month, her representative could be the council's president next month.

Glee In U.N. Shocks Nixon

Washington — In an uncharacteristically angry statement, the White House expressed shock and dismay at the cheering, handclapping and dancing of some U.N. delegates after the vote to admit mainland China and expel Taiwan Monday night. (More on Page 2.)

10-Year Trade Pact Signed

Paris — France and the Soviet Union marked the visit to France this week of Leonid

Brezhnev, the Soviet Communist Party leader, by signing a 10-year economic agreement. Brezhnev and President Pompidou agreed at a dinner that the Soviet and French positions on many world problems were close.

Cubans Staying Put

New Orleans — Nineteen Cubans continued their refusal to leave New Orleans for home. The 19 had come for a sugar technology conference without visas. (More on Page 1.)

On-Site Inspection Pushed

Washington — There is still a need for on-site inspection to monitor any ban on underground nuclear tests, Pentagon scientists told a congressional committee. They said some types of detonations ranging up to 100 kilotons could still escape long-range detection.

Nixon OKs Aleutian Blast

Washington — Chairman James R. Schlesinger of the Atomic Energy Commission announced that President Nixon had approved the proposed underground atomic explosion in the Aleutians. (More on Page 3.)

Business Pressure Succeeds

Washington — The government, bowing to pressure from business, dropped its requirement that merchants provide by next week lists of maximum prices that can be charged under the price freeze. There has been a widespread failure to make up the lists.

5-6% Wage Hikes To Be OK'd

Washington — Sources close to the Pay Board indicated it was likely to allow wages to rise by an average of 5 to 6% a year after the wage freeze ends next month.

'Buy American' Part OK'd

Washington — The Senate Finance Committee voted to give President Nixon the power to continue the "Buy American" feature of the investment tax credit if he wants. The administration did not ask for the power.

Nixon Shocked By Some Delegates' 'Glee' After Defeat Of U.S. In U.N.

Washington (AP) — President Nixon, giving a delayed reaction to Monday night's events that saw the United Nations admit mainland China and expel Taiwan, suggested Wednesday the result could be lessened U.S. support and a reshuffling of foreign aid.

Press secretary Ronald L. Ziegler said Nixon was shocked by what he regarded as "undisguised glee" and "personal animosity" on the part of unnamed U.N. delegates following votes by the world organization that marked a diplomatic defeat for the United States.

Reading from notes, Ziegler made it clear to reporters that he spoke for Nixon and the government in saying "we would be less than candid" if warning were not served publicly that Monday's happenings could well erode public and congressional support for the U.N. and—in the case of foreign aid—for countries whose delegates joined in what he termed "a shocking spectacle."

As Seen On TV News

The White House spokesman said he was talking about events that took place on the floor of the General Assembly following Monday night's votes, as seen by Nixon and others on television news programs.

The extent and direction of Nixon's reported shock, perhaps anger, were not perfectly clear.

It was not immediately evident, for example, whether the President aimed primarily at expressing his sentiments to the world community or to American voters who feel strongly about the result of U.N. voting on China.

Ziegler did say the White House had received a large number of telephone calls and telegrams "expressing shock and dismay" at what he sought to picture as unseemly antics on the floor of the General Assembly that he labeled unworthy of the organization.

Actions Objected To

The press secretary insisted the United States is not challenging the U.N. votes, but rather objects to the post-voting actions of some delegates as seen by Nixon on his home screen.

Asked exactly what certain delegates had done to shock the chief executive, Ziegler spoke of "the cheering, the clapping, the undignified actions on the part of some delegates."

The President, he said, supports the United Nations and wants to see it succeed.

Tito Arrives In Washington To Visit Nixon

Washington (AP) — President Tito of Yugoslavia, the last surviving European leader of World War II vintage, arrived Wednesday for a six-day state visit and talks with President Nixon.

Tito's plane touched down at Andrews Air Force Base in nearby Maryland in less than 15 minutes he was airborne again in a helicopter heading for Camp David, the presidential retreat in the Catoctin Mountains.

Connally Avoids Saying When Controls End

Washington (AP) — Treasury Secretary John B. Connally held out hope Wednesday that controls over the U.S. economy can be lifted by the end of 1972.

But Connally, chairman of the Cost of Living Council, avoided any commitment as he opened the case for Phase 2 economic legislation.

Instead, he urged the House Banking Committee to approve the extension until April 30, 1973, which President Nixon has asked for his control powers. There is sentiment in Congress to let the April 30, 1972, expiration date stand for the present, or to grant a limited extension, so the lawmakers will have an early chance to review the program that will take over from the present freeze after Nov. 13.

Connally held open also the possibility that previously contracted wage increases may be unfrozen, even retroactively — but only if the new Pay Board so rules. He indicated he would not favor a legislative nudge in this direction.

Uncertainty Opposed

"I think it would be a mistake to refuse at this time to fail to extend the act, or to extend it for only a few months," Connally said. "Although we have the power to put Phase 2 in place, the uncertainties that such action could generate among workers and businessmen about the duration of the program could well result in failure of the whole stabilization effort."

He he said he was not implying that Phase 2 will last the full term of the extension — "that program will be kept in place just long enough to do the job, and no longer."

Rep. Tom S. Gettys D-S.C., asked whether "you have hopes that by the end of 1972 or some such time we can get back to a free economy."

"Yes, I think we will," Connally replied. "We are not embarked on perpetual control of the economy."

Connally testified against a background of some further unfavorable economic news.

Indicators Dip 0.3%

The Commerce Department reported its composite of leading business indicators showed a dip of 0.3% in September. This composite often is an augury of coming economic trends.

Assistant Commerce Secretary Harold C. Passer said, however, that the figures are difficult to interpret and may well be revised upward when all the data are in. He noted that a decline of 0.9% in the composite for August later was revised to a dip of only 0.1%.

Stock market prices dropped for the 11th straight session.

Rep. Ferdinand J. St. Germain, D-R.I., questioned Connally about control of lawyers' fees, bringing up a House Postal subcommittee report that criticized the employment of Nixon's former law firm, Mudge, Rose, Guthrie and Alexander, by the underwriters of the first bond issue floated by the new Postal Service.

St. Germain described the arrangement with the law firm as a "sweetheart contract," changing the phrase to "an exceptionally lucrative contract," when Connally objected.

The secretary said legal fees, like wages, are subject to the freeze.

He added "In bond work, fees are almost automatic; they are a certain percentage . . . Law fees are controlled. Lawyers can't raise their fees."

Nixon Advised To 'Cool It'

United Nations (UPI) — African and Asian U.N. delegates said Wednesday President Nixon's criticism of demonstrations on the General Assembly floor left "a negative impression of dollar diplomacy."

While most diplomats refused to be quoted by name many, in effect, advised Nixon to "cool it."

But others, including outspoken Ambassador Jamil M. Baroody of Saudi Arabia, shared the presidential indignation expressed by White House spokesman Ronald L. Ziegler.

"All that was missing were the drums and the sort of an orchestra that plays in a nightclub," Baroody said.

"On Monday night, instead of being gratified in a sober manner, many diplomats acted as if the General Assembly were a football field where their team had won the game."

Ambassador Salim A. Salim of Tanzania, wearing a Mao jacket, was reported to have danced a jig in front of the Assembly rostrum after the China vote. Salim denied it.

A recurrent opinion was that the assembly demonstration was as much a celebration at the defeat of the United States on a major issue as jubilation at the victory for Peking.

U.S. Threats Of Reprisals Meet With Surprise In U.N.

United Nations, N.Y. (AP) — Many U.N. diplomats reacted with surprise, shock and anger Wednesday to threats of U.S. financial reprisals against the United Nations for expelling Nationalist China.

A broad sampling of opinion, however, indicated a general doubt that substantial cuts would be made with the possible exception of voluntary contributions to special U.N. operations.

It was apparent that statements by congressional leaders and administration spokesmen were being watched closely by delegates, especially those involved in discussing the 1972 U.N. budget.

In the U.N. budgetary committee, Rep. Edward Derwinski, R-Ill. canceled a scheduled speech "until the dust is settled."

Some diplomats acknowledged that any major cut in U.S. contributions could be a serious blow to the world organization which Secretary-General U Thant recently described as being "in a state of near and hopeless insolvency."

The U.S. financial support is important since Washington pays approximately one-third of the $967-million program, including the regular U.N. budget and voluntary contributions to U.N. special programs.

Tax Incentives Suggested For Insurance

Washington (AP) — Spokesmen for the insurance industry argued Wednesday for a national health care plan based on private insurance coverage with tax incentives.

Unlike President Nixon's plan, also based on private insurance, the system would rely on tax provisions rather than mandatory requirements for employers to offer coverage to their employees. The federal government would join the states in financing coverage for the poor.

Washington (AP) — The Nixon administration announced Wednesday plans to proceed with a huge underground atomic blast in the Aleutian Islands, drawing expressions of dismay from the Canadian ambassador here.

Although Sen. Mike Gravel, D-Alaska, told newsmen the blast, testing a 5-megaton antimissile warhead, is scheduled for Nov. 4, James R. Schlesinger, chairman of the Atomic Energy Commission, told newsmen a test date has not yet been established.

Schlesinger said, however, that preparations would be completed within a week, making the test possible by the Nov. 4 date.

Meanwhile, seven environmental groups headed by the Committee for Nuclear Responsibility, are seeking to halt the test through court action, contending it might cause earthquakes, tidal waves, radiation leakage or other environmental damage.

Alaska Gov. William Egan said President Nixon and the AEC "in making this decision have taken—and must assume—full responsibility for the safety of the people who would suffer the consequences if an accident occurs."

Congress had passed legislation last Sept. 22 barring the test before mid-1972 unless the President authorized it.

Schlesinger told a news conference Wednesday, "The Atomic Energy Commission is now planning to proceed with the Cannikin test. We have now received the requisite authority to go ahead including detonation."

"We have presidential authorization," he said in answer to a question.

Canada and Japan have both opposed the test, in which a hydrogen warhead with a force equivalent to 5 million tons of TNT would be exploded some 6,000 feet underground in remote Amchitka Island in the northern Pacific Ocean. It would be the biggest U.S. underground test although the Russians have had some in this range.

Canada's Ambassador Marcel Cadieux was informed of the U.S. decision by "a high-ranking State Department official" earlier in the day, the Canadian embassy here said. A Canadian spokesman said Cadieux expressed a sense of dismay and told Schlesinger there were international principles involved in a test whose effects might reach to the borders of other nations.

Radiation Feared
Environment groups opposing the test have argued that it might leak radiation into the Pacific Ocean.

Schlesinger told newsmen the administration has considered the environmental issues and believes the risk to be extremely small.

"Overriding requirements of national security have, of necessity, taken precedence," he said, explaining that the test is needed to make sure the warhead for the Spartan antiballistic missile works properly before the missile is deployed.

Congress has authorized its deployment by 1976. The Soviet Union recently conducted underground atomic tests of around the same size.

Schlesinger said the warhead has been placed inside its deep test hole and that work to seal the shaft "will begin today."

Closing the shaft, he said, would "make it impractical to recover the device," but he said if necessary the warhead could be destroyed underground by "tens of pounds of TNT" without touching off any nuclear explosion.

Would Be Buried

In that case, he said, the debris of the warhead including its radioactive components would be permanently buried, but there would be no large-scale generation of additional radioactivity.

Both Gravel and Sen. Edmund S. Muskie, D-Maine, criticized the administration's decision.

Muskie said the test might leak radiation "the consequences of which are unpredictable."

He called the decision "a case of bureaucratic momentum overwhelming those in government who have argued that the doubtful military benefits of the test do not justify the environmental risks."

Schlesinger, however, said "the risks are exceedingly small."

The Amchitka Island site was selected in 1966, he said, "because of its remoteness and the virtual zero likelihood of any damage."

In a separate lawsuit, 34

Congressmen have been trying to obtain disclosure of the administration's own private assessment of the test's possible impacts, contained in a report to the President from a special committee of the National Security Council.

Schlesinger repeated Wednesday the administration's position that this document was protected by executive privilege and should not be disclosed.

District Judge George L. Hart, as directed earlier by a U.S. Court of Appeals, has asked to see the document himself, to determine whether it could be disclosed.

2 No-Confidence Motions Defeated By Premier Sato

The New York Times

Tokyo — The government of Premier Eisaku Sato rebutted its critics Wednesday night by beating back two motions of no confidence in the lower house of the Diet (Parliament).

In the first, the four opposition parties charged that Foreign Minister Takeo Fukuda was responsible for a Japanese diplomatic defeat in the United Nations where Japan had supported Nationalist China in its losing struggle to retain a seat in the General Assembly.

That motion went down 274 to 169.

In the second, Kakuei Tanaka, the minister of international trade and industry, was charged with succumbing to American pressure when he recently initiated an agreement limiting Japanese exports of synthetic and woolen textiles to the United States, despite Diet resolutions opposing such an agreement.

The vote in favor of Tanaka was 280 to 171.

Both votes went along party lines.

IN PERSPECTIVE

By WILLIAM O. DOBLER

In a recent column, Bob Considine speaks of a coming development in the field of transportation. The transportation he speaks of is the nation's planned space shuttle program involving rockets sent toward distant goals and then returned to earth for further use.

The program must have a headquarters, a place from which the rockets can be launched and a home for their return, very much in the order of conventional air flight. You may remember that Nebraska was one of the state's interested in getting the program.

With all the talk about revitalizing the rural areas of the nation, it was felt that Nebraska might have a pretty good shot at the program, one involving billions of dollars. But Nebraska should not get its hopes too high.

Considine wrote: "Florida wants the shuttle, naturally. It was a more powerful Texas lobby that deprived Florida of what it expected to have (and should have had), NASA's manned space center. It—and the billions involved—went to its present spot outside of Houston.

"Now California is making the biggest pitch for the shuttle. It is making a good case: It has Vandenberg and Edwards, the former a launching site for most of the military satellites that now keep an eye peeled on the Soviet Union, China, Cuba, etc. . . .

What strikes you, after reading this, is what Considine did not say. He did not even mention Nebraska or any of the other states that might be interested in landing this program and which could also meet the physical requirements of the government in terms of facilities.

Obviously, Nebraska is such a long-shot that an informed individual would not even throw the state in as a contender. The federal government talks about plans to move people and industry into the spacious Midwest but it does nothing of the sort itself when it has a chance to do so.

This is typical of the rural development scene in all respects. It is a concept that gets a lot of lip service but sees very little action.

There are some Nebraskans who would just as soon see it remain that way — those who have the twisted notion that we cannot grow and still maintain a rewarding way of life. If we can clean air, good water and a generally livable environment, it is said, we should disavow the industrial expansion efforts of the past decade.

This is plain nonsense but it has a lot of appeal among people who don't bother to think much about the direction in which they are being led. Such thinking, along with the natural tendency in the national government to ignore this part of the country, doesn't paint for us a very rosy picture.

In other areas of transportation, the nation's airlines, we see another typical example of poor planning. Ten years ago, the airlines began a phenomenal growth and, as might have been expected, they could see no end to the rainbow.

Now, the end of the rainbow has been discovered but no pot of gold has been found there. Airline patronage has leveled off and the airlines were caught with huge overhead costs in terms of personnel, equipment and services.

The airlines indulged themselves and their patrons in luxury and convenience. When times tightened up financially, such operations could no longer make it and substantial curtailments and merger proposals have followed.

As we seem to do so often, we practiced all kinds of extremes in terms of airline transportation, including excessive salaries and passenger service. In the process, the airlines almost priced themselves right out of business.

The experience should be one from which we learn to operate with a little more restraint and foresight. The more we fail to manage our affairs intelligently, the more we will find government managing them for us.

Once Irreproachable FBI Now Fends Harsh Criticism

WASHINGTON — Once upon a time the FBI and its director, J. Edgar Hoover, occupied niches in the American pantheon next to those reserved for motherhood and the flag. Today, motherhood is getting a hard time from the Zero Population Growth movement, while the flag sometimes is trampled on or burned. Is it so surprising, then, that Hoover and his bureau also are getting the put-down treatment?

Hoover himself obviously is irritated. In a highly unusual move, he recently sent a letter defending the bureau to one of the chairmen of a forthcoming conference on the FBI. The director reportedly said he would be unable to attend the conferences or to send a representative because people associated with it had sharply criticized the FBI in the past.

Hoover probably was referring mainly to former Attorney General Ramsey Clark and former Assistant Attorney General Burke Marshall. Defenders of the bureau sarcastically note that neither Clark nor Marshall voiced any public complaints about the bureau's performance while they were in office.

The list of alleged FBI shortcomings grows ever longer. Time magazine asserts that "The FBI's spirit is sapped, its morale low, its initiative satisfied. For the first time, there are doubts within the bureau and within the administration about the FBI's ability to serve as an effective agency against subversion."

The resignation on Oct. 6 of William C. Sullivan, No. 3 man in the bureau, seemed to indicate a serious internal upheaval. Sullivan had figured prominently in speculation about a successor to Hoover. Two earlier heirs apparent, Cartha D. DeLoach and Quinn

Tamm, also left the bureau. Hoover may have "merged his ego and his organization" — as one writer has put it — but strains are beginning to show within the bureau's close-knit, closed-mouth hierarchy.

The records stolen last March from the bureau's Media, Pa., office painted a picture of FBI surveillance more intensive than had previously been imagined. On the other hand, the FBI is criticized also for not being diligent enough in espionage cases.

The FBI's approach to apprehending airplane hijackers has lately been condemned as crude and dangerous. The Washington Post reported that FBI agents rejected a warning by the pilot of a hijacked plane that "you are endangering lives" by refusing to allow the craft to be refueled at a stop in Jacksonville on Oct. 5. Minutes later, the hijacker had fatally shot his wife, the pilot, and himself.

A similar incident occurred in October, 1969, when FBI agents attempted to board a hijacked plane when it landed for refueling at New York's Kennedy International Airport. On that occasion, though, the pilot fended the agents off and proceeded to Rome. He later said that "The FBI plan was damned near a prescription for getting the entire crew killed and the plane destroyed."

It remains to be seen whether Hoover, approaching age 77, can weather the many storms swirling about him. His 47 years on the job attest to his staying power. He reportedly would like to stay in office long enough to dedicate the new FBI headquarters in Washington, scheduled for completion in 1973. But few will venture to lay odds that he will be able to do so.

'Small World, Isn't It?'

Millionaires Organize

Franklin Roosevelt claimed that it was not true that he dined on grilled millionaire and being one himself, said the suggestion by the entrenched business community that he hated big money sort of hurt him. Since FDR's time, millionaire financial support of Democratic presidential candidates has grown openly, unlike earlier days when that kind of help was publicly thought to be only a Republican windfall.

Now the millionaires, or at least some of them, have organized. According to a New York Times report, a group of 60 millionaires decided at a luncheon meeting at 21 Club to ask presidential candidates to support a series of reforms as the price for their contributions. The potential contributions of the luncheon guests represent perhaps one-quarter of the funds necessary for a presidential campaign.

Concentrating on Democratic hopefuls, the millionaires agreed that they would ask presidential candidates to come individually before the group in the next few months to discuss such proposals as abolition of the congressional seniority system, democratization of the political parties, modernization of state and local government structures, strict limitations on campaign spending and ultimate government financing of political campaigns.

"It was the establishment taking on the establishment," said one participant. One informant, however, said the millionaires "sounded like college students" as they discussed the asserted failures of the "system."

We are tempted to suggest, without sounding too egalitarian, that these are not your average, run-of-the-mill millionaires. They sound as if they have a feel for some of today's issues that might make old money cringe.

At any rate, the small but potentially powerful millionaires' lobby adds its influence to the ever louder call for congressional, governmental and campaign-financing reforms. And the latter, once accomplished, would go a long way toward taking the heavy contributor out of the back rooms of politics.

Amchitka Test Thought Essential

Opponents of the Safeguard antiballistic missile system argued loud and long and with some justification during congressional debate over funding the project that the system was untested, possibly technologically unsound and that a go-ahead would eventually mean the expenditure of vast sums above and beyond the original multi-billion dollar commitment.

But Safeguard won congressional approval, narrowly in the Senate two years running, and powerful opposition to continuation of the program apparently has collapsed this year.

President Nixon Wednesday gave the go-ahead for an underground nuclear explosion on the Alaskan island of Amchitka to test the Spartan warhead for the antiballistic missile system. Congress had barred the explosion — which is opposed by Japan, Canada, the states of Alaska and Hawaii and various conservationist and environmental groups — unless it was specifically approved in advance by Nixon.

Vote On Bringing Peking Into United Nations Brings About Changes In Diplomatic Relations

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. — The vote to bring Peking into the United Nations and expel Taiwan changes the procedures but not the realities of world politics.

The realities remain the same. China's power rests on her vast population and territory, and not on any seat in the U.N. The vote does not diminish the power of the United States, the Soviet Union, or the other major powers, but it does give Peking a new platform, new influence, and new procedures for engaging the work of the world.

Accordingly, much will depend now on how Chou En-lai and his associates in Peking react to China's new responsibilities as one of the five permanent members of the U.N. Security Council — whether they accept the vote as invitation to help in the peaceful settlement of world disputes — the main purpose of the U.N. — or whether they attempt to use the U.N. as an instrument of their own national ambitions and of world revolution.

It will take time to get an answer to this question, but meanwhile the vote is obviously only the first of a number of obvious changes. There will be a faster movement now among the nations to establish diplomatic relations with Peking. Belgium did so a few hours after the vote — though this was obviously in train before — and the leaders of many of the major nations, observing President Nixon's coming visit to Peking, will be lining up to follow him.

The effect of the vote will be more important and immediate in Japan, now coming to the end of the Sato regime, and already in the middle of what promises to be a critical election. Tokyo is not likely to move too fast until the U.S. Senate has approved the "reversion" treaty which hands back Okinawa to Japanese control, but thereafter there will undoubtedly be considerable pressure on Premier Sato or his successor to establish diplomatic relations with Peking, even if this means weakening Tokyo's ties with Chiang Kai-shek.

The U.S. has an immediate problem, too, with Generalissimo Chiang. Despite all the efforts of the Nixon administration to keep the U.N. from voting to expel Taiwan, Chiang Kai-shek is known to feel that President Nixon's decision to visit Peking was the critical decision in this whole question of who should represent China. It is understood that he discussed this in the bitter anti-Nixon terms with former Premier Kishi of Japan before the vote. So the Nixon administration has a problem of how to reconcile its relations with Taiwan and its forthcoming negotiations with Peking.

Other nations have similar problems as a result of the vote. Not only Japan, but the Philippines, Australia, and New Zealand, which went along with the strategy of keeping Taiwan in the U.N., are now in the embarrassing position of working out new relationships with an increasingly influential Chinese communist regime.

The Sato government in Tokyo, keeping in mind the importance of getting that Okinawa reversion treaty through the U.S. Senate, agreed to co-sponsor the Washington resolution in favor of Taiwan, despite savage political opposition at home, but other governments now have similar problems of coming to terms with Peking.

On the other hand, the vote eases problems for Washington more than it does for Tokyo and other capitals. Henry Kissinger has just come back to Washington from Peking, presumably with an agenda for the forthcoming talks between President Nixon and Chou En-lai. The chances are that it will now be easier for the Chinese communists to talk about the future of Asia with Nixon after their victory than it would have been if the President's policy and tactics had prevailed in the debate and Taiwan had been kept here as a potential government of China. Also, the Nixon-Chou En-lai visit is now likely to take place sooner, probably this year.

Ironically, Nixon, because of his defeat, now finds himself in a better position to go to both Peking and to Moscow and talk objectively about the basic problems of security, arms

The Trans-Atlantic Brink

PARIS — Unless the six members of the Common Market, combined together with Britain, join swiftly in a collective action fixing currency parities and negotiating as a single unit with the United States, a trade war may erupt in the Western world.

This is the opinion of Jean Monnet, generally regarded as the father of Europe. Monnet, who has been pressing steadily toward his goal of unifying the West ever since he worked in the League of Nations secretariat, warns of trouble in the event of no action — in time.

"I think everyone in Europe and the United States is against a trade war," he says. "But the danger of such a development will come only if the monetary problem endures too long. Personally I am optimistic enough to think it can be settled by the end of this year."

"Europe, including Britain although it isn't yet a member of the market, must decide on its own stable monetary parity. After that, acting as a single group, the Common Market countries plus Britain can discuss the issue with the U.S."

Monnet stresses that before the European countries approach the U.S. on negotiating a new basis for financial and economic relationships, they must "prove to themselves and also to the world that they form a unit."

"After they have done so, the seven — the Common Market, plus Britain — can create an executive organization along the lines mentioned by French President Pompidou, in order to deal with the various currency reserves. Only in this way is it possible to bargain with the United States and to determine how Europe will deal with the dollar problem."

LA VERNA HASSLER

Patchwork Prairie Country

"You will never believe what I saw today," I said to The Farmer after arriving home from a shopping tour of a large nearby town.

After having just completed our milo harvest the past week, he was scarcely prepared when I told him I had seen Christmas decorations coming out in some stores. In fact, I had not realized how much mileage some parents get out of a Christmas threat especially when Santas and tinsels are stocked so early in the season.

While I picked up groceries in a large supermarket in the next aisle hidden by tall shelves, I heard a mother reprimand a naughty child by saying, "If you don't behave yourself, you won't get any presents for Christmas. In almost three months time, I wonder if that threat won't become a little threadbare by Christmas."

Well, I cannot find myself becoming enthused at this time of year with visions of sugar plums and stuffed stockings while the combines still roar in

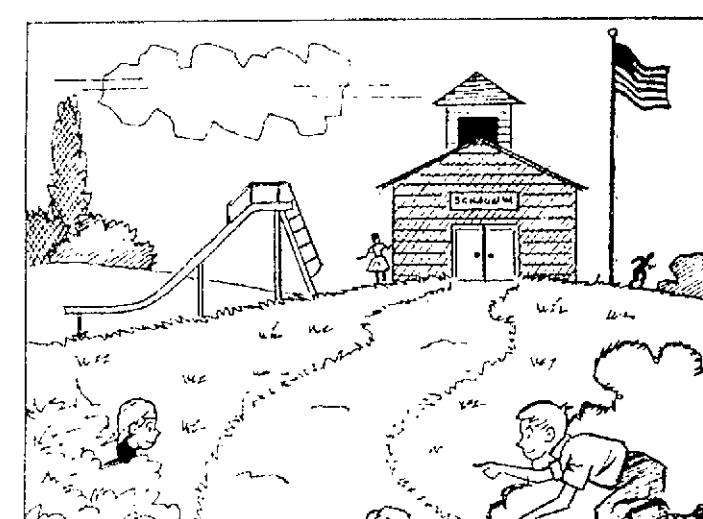

Jean Monnet

What Monnet means is that if the seven "Europeans" don't deal with the present fiscal crisis as a single unit, they face the possibility of splitting into national segments and entering into damaging national commercial competitions — or a trade war as implied in the recent action of Denmark. Denmark imposed an import surtax similar to that of the U.S., Monnet points out:

"The situation that produced the present crisis has been dormant for years — and it was a good thing that Nixon took action. But the action he took — above all the 10 per cent surtax on imports — could open the door to other capitals doing the same thing, as we have just seen in Copenhagen. It would be very bad if such a trend were to continue."

He warns: "Some people believe Washington would prefer to deal separately with the European countries, as, for example, West Germany. The seven must work in unison. We need an agreement on this as soon as possible between Pompidou and Chancellor Brandt."

game, while the teacher participated. It was always extra fun when the teacher was caught.

I thought of this as I passed a city school with asphalt paving that had so many children running about, screaming at the top of their voices. They looked like a great horde of bugs moving about. All the trees had been removed so a neat appearance prevailed. One age group was lined up taking turns throwing a ball into a basketball net. Another line of children waited their turn on a slide and so it went with organized play as a couple of teachers stood at the opposite end of the school yard supervising. They looked bored and perhaps they were.

Somewhat on this day as my mind drifted into the past, I wondered if these children were really having the fun and freedom of play that we knew so many years ago in a big yard of blue grass and clear, fresh air. They have never known anything different, so perhaps they are happy. Well, as I said, it was the day that set me drifting into the past and I must say, reflection seemed to be a quiet satisfaction for me.

Life Begins At 40:

Garbo Not Glamorous On Street

By ROBERT PETERSON

I am now eligible to join those name droppers who casually talk of having seen Greta Garbo in the flesh. I was walking down New York's 57th Street the other day and waiting to cross at an intersection when a little old lady in front of me began gesticulating wildly to her companion—pointing to a tall woman in a blue raincoat.

"It's Garbo," she squeaked excitedly. So everyone in hearing range craned his neck. Sure enough—there under the babushka was the famous profile.

Garbo is a splendid example of the fact that eminent glamor gals haven't much more to offer than other feminine mortals when observed in a drab setting minus glittering trappings and makeup. If you had told someone who had never heard of her that the woman in the blue raincoat was considered one of the most glamorous women in the world the answer might be, "Who are you trying to kid?"

Garbo, who is said to be three score and 10—and maybe older—seems to love the lonely, silent world which most seniors seek to avoid. She lives alone, goes to the movies frequently, enjoys browsing in antique shops, eats of vitamins and health foods, cares little for human companionship, divides her time between America and Europe, and seems quite genuine in her aversion to publicity.

Every few months I'm jolted to a new appreciation of the fact that you must expend energy to create energy. On a recent weekend I was at a hotel in the Adirondacks where three days of unrelenting rain kept guests frustrated and indoors. About all we did was eat and sleep. By the middle of the third day I felt fatigued and flabby.

I knew I needed some exercise. But there were no indoor gym facilities and after three days of inactivity I didn't feel up to anything more strenuous than crawling back into bed and listening to the depressing patter on the roof.

Then the phone rang and a couple I'd met in the dining room invited me to put on my raincoat and join them for a three-mile hike around the lake. I told them it sounded awfully strenuous, but they insisted. To my astonishment the exercise unmistakably sparked new sources of energy. I felt so good by the time we circumnavigated the lake that I was ready to try it again.

It got me to thinking how easy it must be for older people to become invalids. Without their jobs to spur them into daily activity they tend to be around the house. And the longer they rest the more they rust. The mere thought of exercise becomes anathema to them so they take to their rockers or beds and wait that they don't feel well enough to get around any more. Soon their inactivity leads to actual atrophy of muscles, sluggish blood circulation, susceptibility to disease and eventual invalidism.

As a result of that weekend's experience, I'm more convinced than ever that we must push, prod and persuade ourselves into getting a daily ration of exercise—whether we like it or not.

Capital Spending By Union Oil To Be Increased

Los Angeles AP — Union Oil Co. of California will increase capital spending to about $400 million next year compared to an anticipated $320 million this year, company president Fred L. Hartley said.

The increase, Hartley said, will go toward widening the oil company's exploration and petroleum development program. "We have significantly increased our effort to find oil overseas, and are active in 15 areas including Indonesia, the Middle East, the North Sea, Ecuador and Peru," Hartley said in a speech to the Los Angeles Society of Financial Analysts.

Corn Loan Rate Increase Urged

Congressman Charles Thone Wednesday urged President Nixon to increase the loan rate on 1971 corn and invoke the Taft-Hartley Act to halt the dock strike on the Gulf and East Coasts.

Both actions would help Nebraska agriculture, the First District Republican said in his weekly newsletter.

"Free market prices on corn are disastrously low because the Department of Agriculture predicted that corn blight would greatly reduce the harvest," Thone said.

"Since that prediction was almost totally false, the government should raise loan rates on the 1971 crop."

In urging the President to halt the current dock strikes, Thone noted that Nixon did not invoke the Taft-Hartley Act to stop the West Coast dock strike until it had cost farmers millions of dollars.

"It is estimated that the 100-day work stoppage on the West Coast cost Nebraska farmers more than $10 million," Thone said.

Nebraska losses in sorghum and corn are estimated at $5.8 million, wheat losses were $3.5 million and losses in soybeans and soybean oil meal were $750 000, he said.

"Losses because of the Gulf and East Coast stoppages are continuing," he said.

Thone commended the Department of Agriculture for its 1972 feed grain and soybean program. "The 1972 program looks so favorable for improving market prices that I predict that Nebraska farmers in 1972 will realize a billion dollars more from feed grains than this year," he said.

An outstanding person born under Taurus is Joe Louis. He can display the gentle or Venus nature of this sign — but when he was active in the ring — the explosiveness of the Bull showed with startling clarity. The determination of Taurus was exemplified by the former heavyweight boxing champion. He often arose from a knockout to score his own knockout.

Rocky Ridge Acres Proposal Rejected

After considerable discussion, the City-County Planning Commission Wednesday denied the preliminary plat for Rocky Ridge Acres at approximately 90th and Van Dorn.

On a vote of six to two, the commissioners turned down the plan after debating the proposed central waste stabilization lagoon proposed for the 23 building lots in the preliminary plat.

The only two members who voted for approval as recommended by the planning director were Robert Allington and Commission Chairman George Williamson.

Several members expressed the opinion that if the area could not be served by the city's sewer system, then neither the proposed lagoon nor suggested septic tanks for each of the 23 lots would be the most satisfactory solution.

The planning office reported Wednesday that the developer had agreed to move the lagoon back 300 feet rather than the 20 feet previously proposed.

At last week's hearing, a farmer of adjacent property told the commission members that this land, which his son had farmed at one time has "high seepage" and that he would want a guarantee that there would be "absolutely no seepage" from the lagoon.

He said he wasn't opposed to the development but wouldn't want a "stinking lagoon within a half mile of me."

Other Planning Commission action:

The individual unit firms and their employees that have reported in at or over their goal are: Union Bank & Trust Company, Farmers Mutual Insurance Company, Credit Bureau of Lincoln, Lawlors, John E. Olsson and Associates and Weaver-Minier Company.

Hastings College President Announces Plans To Retire

Hastings, Neb. (AP) — Dr. Theron B. Maxson, president of Hastings College since 1957, notified the board of trustees Wednesday he wishes to retire June 1, 1972.

His retirement after 15 years concludes the longest presidency in the 90-year history of the college, which now has an enrollment of about 850 students.

"Fifteen years in any college presidency is sufficient time for one to achieve an innovative educational pattern," Dr. Maxson told the board, "I will leave this post with sincere gratitude for the kind of people I have found in Nebraska and the pleasure I have had in working with them."

During Dr. Maxson's years Hastings became the first college in Mid-America to adopt the so-called "Four-one-Four" curriculum by which the first semester is completed by Christmas. A one-month interim term consisting of one four-hour course follows that semester, and the second semester begins in February, making it possible to earn 36 hours of credit in the academic year. This program is now widely used.

Meanwhile, the Board of Trustees elected Dr. Robert E. Palmer of Lincoln. Willard W. Westover of Grand Island and Laurens Williams of Washington, D.C., as new members of the board.

The trustees also recognized the service of three long-time board members by electing them to honorary life memberships on the board.

The three are: Sam James of Scottsdale, Ariz., a board member for 27 years, and Dr. Miller of Denver, a board member for 27 years, and D. George Rosenlot of Lincoln, a 1916 Hastings College graduate and board member since 1938.

Dr. Palmer is pastor of Dr. Palmer is pastor of Westminster Presbyterian Church in Lincoln an associate professor at the University of Nebraska and chaplain of the state legislature.

Student Voice On Faculty, Alcohol Use Resolutions Passed At NWU

By KEN GRAY Star Staff Writer

Resolutions allowing Nebraska Wesleyan students an active vote in "the employment, dismissal or retention of faculty or administrative personnel," and stating that "legal possession or consumption of alcoholic beverages shall not be excluded from NWU grounds or functions," were passed at a mass assembly Wednesday night.

The assembly of over 350 students, faculty members and administrators passed the student vote bill 165-120 after much discussion.

The purpose of the bill, said Sam Calvert, the student who sponsored it, is to go on record concerning the issue since it is believed that any concrete action would be vetoed by the administration.

Opposition Expressed

Dr. John Walker, a philosophy teacher at NWU, spoke in opposition to the bill. He said, "groups representing the self-interests of students should not participate as equals. that is, as voting judges, with the faculty in decisions to hire, fire, or retain faculty."

"Very fine and competent teachers no longer at Nebraska Wesleyan University might still be here if the students had participated in decision-making about retention of faculty," said Mrs. Nan Graf, a NWU English teacher, in support of the bill.

The "Alcohol Bill" passed by a vote of 216-45, after being amended and rewritten on the floor.

All bills will be subject to veto by the president of the university and the Board of Governors.

Visit Bill Passed

The assembly also passed, by a vote of 313-34, a resolution allowing each living unit on the campus to determine its own investigation hours.

"I don't think the Board of Governors should be acting as our parents while we're on this campus, when we're treated as adults elsewhere," said Chuck Gresco, student sponsor of the bill.

There was no opposition to the bill.

One bill was defeated by the Assembly. It provided for a system of checks and balances by granting temporary review power over the Code of Student Rights and Responsibilities to the NWU Student Court.

A University Judiciary Committee composed of four elected students, three faculty members and two administrators will have the powers mentioned in the bill. The judiciary committee has not yet been formed, however.

Also passed was a bill calling for the publication of the exact uses of student fees, tuitions and board and room payments, and a bill urging non-discrimination against minorities in recruiting students and faculty members.

Three bills were tabled at the assembly. One dealt with student power over faculty tenure, another concerned the adoption of a pass-fail system and the third called for academic credit in courses in "minority" studies.

Barbee Seeks Opinion On Promoter's Lawsuit

By United Press International
State Game Commission Director Willard Barbee said Thursday the attorney general's office would be asked whether Nebraska should have aided the Buffalo Bill Wild West Show in a lawsuit.

County Board Recall Sought By Carpenter

Scottsbluff (UP)—State Sen. Terry Carpenter said Tuesday he has prepared petitions for the recall of three Scotts Bluff County commissioners and Assessor Marjorie Kleist.

He said the petitions would be distributed after tax notices are sent in December.

Carpenter had brought suit over the county reappraisal of real property assessments but the suit was dismissed Monday in District Court by Judge John Kuns of Kimball.

Kuns ruled state law does not provide for voiding of appraisals and that Carpenter must wait until taxes are collected to seek a remedy.

Carpenter said he did not want to circulate the recall petitions himself because law requires that replacement names must be proposed. He said he didn't want to name the replacements.

About 2,000 petition signatures would be needed for the recall vote.

The three commissioners are Fred Lockwood, Bill Nichol and Harold Ledingham.

Girl In Bathtub Is Electrocuted Adjusting A TV

Des Moines (UPI) — A Windsor Heights teenager was killed Monday night when she was electrocuted while attempting to adjust a television set while in the bathtub.

Authorities said Kimberly Sue Liggett, 15, was found by a neighbor, Mrs. Max Shafer in her home. Mrs. Shafer went to the Liggett home at the request of the girl's mother, Mrs. Burris Liggett, who was unable to reach her daughter by phone. The Liggett family lives in the Des Moines suburb of Windsor Heights.

Officials said Mrs. Shafer found the girl's body slumped over on the back of the bathtub. Police said the girl was apparently trying to adjust the set while in the bathtub when she was electrocuted.

The producer of the show, Montie Montana, has said the state should have come to his aid in fighting a suit filed against him by Ringling Brothers Barnum and Bailey Circus.

The circus had contended Montana had no right to use the name "Wild West Show."

Montana said he would send the state a bill for legal services in connection with the case amounting to $15,000.

Barbee confirmed that the name issue did crop up during negotiations on a contract with Montana to offer the show at the Wild West Show Arena at North Platte.

He said copyright records were searched and as a result the name was included in the contract.

"We were reasonably well satisfied" Montana had the right to use the name, the director said.

Meanwhile, Montana sent a $5,000 check to the state for use of the arena — but it bounced. Barbee said the incident did "us a great deal of damage."

Montana said the $5,000 would be more than offset by the money owed him for the state's obligation in connection with the lawsuit.

Sindo Pleads No Contest To Robbery

Omaha (M) — Robert Sindo, 22, Omaha, entered a plea of no contest in U.S. District Court Wednesday to a charge of robbing the Ames Plaza Bank drive-in facility Sept. 24.

A total of $25,000 was reported taken from the bank.

Judge Robert Denney delayed sentencing, pending a pre-sentence report.

Richard E. Watenpugh, 23, also of Omaha, had entered an identical plea to the same charge a week ago. Judge Denney has delayed his sentence.

Both men are free on $10,000 bonds.

A no contest plea is treated as a plea of guilty for purposes of sentencing.

The two men were arrested in Denver Sept. 28.

Shindo had been ordered to stand trial after a hearing at which an FBI agent testified he found a bus ticket on the suspect for a package that had been shipped to Omaha. The agent said the package contained most of the money believed taken from the bank.

"When Greek meets Greek, they start a fight.
"Or a restaurant." American folk saying.
In the hot summer, Athenians who can afford it go to the beach hotels. A half hour from Athens on the blue Aegean Sea.
Now it's warm October.

Athens was crowded with conventions: American CPAS, Lions Clubbers and optometrists and Spiro Agnew. Hotels jammed. Taxis impossible.

So we picked up a Hertz car (banging them for 20% discount which they say is not possible, but it is). And we drove down to the beach.

From New York a friend wrote me: "I envy you. October is one of the best times of year for Greece. Great swimming weather. The Aegean calms down. And the Greeks retake their country from the tourists."
He was public relations man for the Greek Tourist Office. He did the job so well—up 58% in three years—they thanked him and fired him.

He did it so well that October is when the Greeks retake Greece and lease it out to conventions.
I said to the desk clerk: "How much?"
The desk clerk yawned. He looked at the shine on his nails. He said: "There are no rooms, but I could let you have a cottage."
I said: "We need two bedrooms."
He smiled in a pitying way. He said: "These cottages have only one bedroom. They are 1,600 drachmas a day."
I said: "That's $50!"
We went out on the terrace. We had a little light lunch — $15. (Lunch in Greece should be about $9 in the best places.) Below us on the ink-blue harbor, the three white yachts rocked rock-a-bye baby.
They were having lunch. Probably fresh Iranian caviar. Broiled Aegean lobster. (Moral: Buy American Liberty ships cheap, and squeeze the American government out of a million in taxes, and you've got it made.)
But there are dozens of little hotels around here. We looked at several and found a splendid place. Rooms $5.50 with breakfast. The management sent up water and ice. And after awhile things looked better.

ETV Commission To Meet Friday

A public meeting of the Nebraska Educational Television Commission is scheduled Friday in Lincoln, according to Commission Secretary Jack McBride. The meeting will be held at 1:30 p.m. in the Minden Room of the Nebraska Center for Continuing Education.
McBride said only routine business items are on the meeting agenda. The commissioners will receive reports on both instructional and public television programs, a report on plans for moving the various Lincoln-based ETV organizations to the new Telecommunications Center; and make a quarterly budget review.

Health Tip

Here is a health tip from the Nebraska State Medical Association:
Halloween is one of those times when extra precautions are needed to guard the health and safety of children. Motorists should especially be on the lookout, since many children will be on their way to Halloween parties or will be out trick-or-treating.
Parents should remind their children about the dangers of running into the street. In addition, parents should make sure that every child wears light-colored clothing after dark.
Children should not wear masks which restrict their vision.
For the Halloween party, be sure that decorations and costumes are fire-proof or fire resistant if you plan to use candles or torches.
When the trick-or-treat groups come to your door, hand out packaged sweets, not homemade foods. By the same token, instruct your children to eat only commercial foods from unbroken packages. Homemade foods and unpackaged foods can be disease carriers.

Helicopter Ambulance To Be At Football Game

The helicopter ambulance of the Denver Midtown Hospital Association will be hovering over Memorial Stadium Saturday before the Colorado game to demonstrate its potential for the rescue of heart attack victims.

The demonstration will be directed by two alumni of the Colorado School of Medicine: Dr. Robert V. Elliott, director of the Community Electrocardiographic Interpretative Service at St. Luke's Hospital in Denver, and Dr. Fred W. Schoonmaker, chief of the cardiovascular service at St. Luke's. They are both volunteer faculty members at the University of Colorado.

The air ambulance will land on the practice field at the south end of the stadium and be on exhibit Saturday morning before the game. Dr. Elliott said the ambulance will hover over the stadium to demonstrate how its equipment can send electrocardiographic monitoring data on a simulated patient by radio and telephone to the computer at St. Luke's in Denver and back to Lincoln.

It is equipped with cardiopulmonary resuscitation equipment and is available to heart attack patients at the Colorado home games.

The potential for heart attacks among football spectators is high, Dr. Elliott said, running "well in excess of the rate in the population as a whole."

The Denver air ambulance's services will be available at the game Saturday, if need arises, along with the Nebraska emergency medical group's "flying squad" which is on hand at Lincoln games to transport heart attack patients to aid stations at the stadium.

Lincoln Chamber Of Commerce Supports Buying Police Helicopter

The Lincoln Chamber of Commerce went on record Wednesday for supporting the purchase of a police helicopter by the city.

The helicopter currently used by the Lincoln Police Department is being operated through a federal grant.

The Chamber's board of directors joined the Forward Lincoln Committee, an arm of the Chamber, in urging that the city apply for a second grant to provide for outright purchase of the helicopter.

Operating, maintenance and personnel expenses connected with the helicopter would be assumed by the city.

Other chamber business: —Irv Chesen, manager of the Villager Convention Center, was presented a chamber life membership in recognition of his work with the Contact Club. Chesen has solicited some $2,000 in chamber memberships.

—A recommendation by the Agriculture Committee that one of its members be appointed as a member of the board of directors in 1972 "in order to reflect the important economic role of agriculture in our community," was forwarded to the "new president (William Smith) for his discretion."

—The board approved a motion providing that any unused funds solicited by the Agriculture Committee be reappropriated for that committee's use during the following fiscal year.

—Charlotte Chace, a Nebraska Land Hostess, described her part in the program which Conventions Committee Chairman Jack Hart said resulted in a significantly higher number of interstate travelers visiting Lincoln than in the previous year.

Topeka, Kan. (UPI) — Ali M. So. Vietnamese To Free 618

Saigon — The South Vietnamese government announced Thursday it will free 618 Viet Cong prisoners of war Sunday in the biggest single release of the Indochina war.

The Defense Ministry said the release is an amnesty on the occasion of the inauguration of President Nguyen Van Thieu for a second term.

All of the prisoners are South Vietnamese Communists, or Viet Cong, a spokesman said. He said there are no prisoners from North Vietnam involved.

It also was reported that Thieu is expected to make a new peace proposal on South Vietnam's national day Monday. Sources said they understood that the proposal will contain new elements.

He said 442 of the prisoners are in "good health" while 176 are disabled.

"They will be freed in small groups all over the country," Nhut said, "to return to their villages."

Investment Council Okays $1 Million Student Loan Fund

By BOB GUENTHER
Star Staff Writer

Despite a certain amount of doubt, the State Investment Council Wednesday unanimously approved a pilot student loan program involving $1 million in funds.

The council, which has the job of investing idle state funds at the highest rate of return possible, was directed by the 1971 Legislature to establish a student loan program.

However, council members, particularly L. Frederic Hoebel, expressed concern that since the student loan program would have a relatively low rate of return compared to corporate stocks, the bill goes against the council's directive.

"The Legislature has asked us to do something we wouldn't do from a straight investment point of view.

"If you get a lower yield on your investment, the Legislature has in effect said it is all right," Hoebel said.

Investment Officer Fred Kuethe told the council that the minimum rate of return guaranteed by the federal government is 7%, less a servicing charge of .5%.

Noting that the loans could be tied up for up about 18 years at 7% while the future market conditions could yield a higher return on corporate stock investments, Hoebel was cautious in giving his approval to the program.

Hoebel said if he were a teacher he would make his objections to the program known, since the loan funds come from the $43 million Teachers' Retirement Fund.

"Considering the default rate of students," he said, "if I were a teacher I would be doing something about this."

Council member Eldron Freudenburg of West Point agreed: "We must proceed cautiously, since the bill which brought about the council directed us to consider only yield."

However, Chairman Donald J. Mathes of Lincoln said the Teacher Retirement payments are fixed by law, and any yield from investments would only offset the state's input into the fund without changing the amount paid out.

The initial program, Kuethe said, would ease the state into the program and would not involve the total sum of the earmarked monies.

Hoebel, however said, he felt that the state was not just "opening the door for $1 million."

"There's going to be pressure for more," he said recalling bill-sponsor Sen. Terry Carpenter's estimate that the measure might free hundreds of millions of dollars for student loans.

Under the program, the council purchases federally insured loans from private banks. The funds are in turn loaned to students through the State College Board. The student has ten years after graduation and military service to pay the loan back.

Specialist Believes Geriatric Care Being Neglected In Many Hospitals

By CHARLIE HARPSTER
Star Staff Writer

An 82-year-old person in need of long-term hospital care should be treated with the same urgency as a 19-year-old with acute appendicitis, an internationally known geriatric specialist said Wednesday at a Nebraska Center luncheon.

Dr. Lionel Z. Cosin, 60, of Oxford, England, warned against neglecting elderly patients from their communities and families and abandoning them to long-term hospital care.

"By allowing the optimum time to go by for treatment of the elderly," he said, "we allow them to go beyond the remedial phase I'm afraid that much of long-term hospital care tends to be long-term neglect."

Live Useful Lives

Under his program of part-time geriatric care in Oxford hospitals, he said, elderly patients — even those with terminal illnesses — can live longer and more useful lives.

Labeling an elderly patient "chronic" and consigning him to custodial care with no attempt at rehabilitation, he believes, may cause the patient to live up to the label simply because it is expected.

Cosin's philosophy is to allow patients to become as self-sustaining as possible. The clinical director of the geriatric unit of the United Oxford Hospitals, Cosin aims to provide a complete hospital service to restore the elderly to their maximum physiological, physical, social and intellectual competence.

Social competence, he explained, is the ability to look after their own daily needs such as personal appearance. Closely tied to social competence is domestic competence, he said.

"The best thing to restore the competence of elderly women is to put them in a kitchen and give them a chance at something they've done competently for years," Cosin said. The Oxford hospitals have a model kitchen for this purpose, he added.

Kitchen Important

"The kitchen is one of the most important places for women," he said. Under proper supervision, he said, confused and forgetful older women have given "remarkable demonstrations of the return of domestic competence."

Cosin, a member of the National Council of Senior Citizens in this country, recommends that elderly patients keep close ties with the community they have been living in.

"It's a traumatic experience to wrench (the elderly) out of their homes and toss them into a hospital environment. The emotional problems of adjustment to a permanent change of address are lasting," he said.

1% Need Care

Cosin said that about 1,800 patients, averaging 82½ years old, are admitted yearly through the department of geriatric medicine in Oxford. Of these, he said he believes only 1% need a permanent program of constant hospital care.

Costs at the Oxford hospitals have decreased since 1950, he said, even with an increase in staff and equipment, because the average stay of elderly patients has been cut from 286 hospital-bed days to 37.

One of Cosin's innovations is the "floating bed," designed to provide periodic hospital care for the elderly patient while relieving the family from some of the burden. Under this plan, patients may be assigned a hospital bed for three days and two nights, every two weeks. In 14 nights, the bed can support six patients and relieve six families of the responsibilities of caring for the patients at home.

Hearing Aid Analyzer Records Effectiveness

A compact unit of equipment in the Speech and Hearing Clinic on the University of Nebraska-Lincoln campus is making life a little easier for people with hearing deficiencies.

The machine, a Hearing Aid Analyzer, determines through testing whether a hearing aid functions properly. It is one of two or three machines that are available in the state.

Dr. Herbert F. Schiesser, a speech pathology and audiology professor and clinic director, said the analyzer was purchased with funds donated by the Nebraska Sertoma Hearing Project Inc.

Postal Service For W. Blount To End Friday

Washington (AP) — Winton M. "Red" Blount will resign Friday as chief of the U.S. Postal Service and begin a long-expected campaign for the U.S. Senate from Alabama, Montgomery and Washington sources said Wednesday.

Blount, 50, will announce his resignation at a press conference Friday, possibly at the White House, the sources said.

Blount's office would neither confirm nor deny the reports. Blount has long been interested in making the Senate race. His likely opponent would be Democratic incumbent John Sparkman.

However, Sparkman is 72 and several younger Alabama Democrats are interested in challenging him.

Spirit Bonfire To Die For Good

The annual week-long spirit bonfire sponsored by the Sigma Alpha Mu fraternity at the University of Nebraska is burning for the last time this year.

Les Sanger, control officer for the Lincoln Air Pollution program and director of the Lincoln-Lancaster Health Dept. environmental division, has informed the fraternity that this year's bonfire will be allowed to continue, but next year other arrangements will have to be made.

The action came as a result of a complaint Tuesday from Susan Goldsborough, residence director of Sandoz Hall at the university. The bonfire, which will burn until Saturday's Colorado-Nebraska football game, is causing the atmosphere to suffer as a result of pollution, she said.

"Of itself it doesn't critically pollute the air," said Sanger, "but it still doesn't look good."

The fire has been operated under a properly obtained ceremonial fire permit, Sanger said, since open fires burning anything other than leaves and grass are not permitted in the city.

In the years to come, he said if the fraternity wants a spirit fire, it will have to substitute a natural gas torch for the traditional bonfire.

A YEARNING FOR "HOME" In Suburbia

Two native Nebraskans, Mr. and Mrs. Glen Fleischmann, returned to their home state for a visit these past two weeks. Mr. Fleischmann, who was born in Manley and lived in Ashland and Louisville in his boyhood, is an illustrator and author of a novel, "While Rivers Flow," and a historical documentary, "The Cherokee Removal."

Mr. Fleischmann and his wife, who is a native of Weeping Water, were guests at the home of Mr. Fleischmann's brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Meyer, during their stay in Nebraska. However, they did arrange side trips to see Mr. Fleischmann's parents, who recently celebrated their 70th wedding anniversary, in Ashland, and Mrs. Fleischmann's family in Weeping Water.

Although the Fleischmanns, whose home is presently in Bronxville, N.Y., have enjoyed their life there for the past 30 years, they are now seeking a return to the Nebraska countryside. "Our dream is to find a farm in this state," Mr. Fleischmann related.

Since Mr. Fleischmann is a free-lance author, he feels life on a farm would provide the ideal opportunity and surroundings to give proper attention to his work. Mrs. Fleischmann is all for it, and they hope to make their move within the next couple of years.

Once employed solely as an illustrator for such publications as the Saturday Evening Post, Colliers and Woman's Home Companion, Mr. Fleischmann always aspired to write full time. He began research on his novel, which treats the Cherokee Indian history and removal, when he was serving in the U.S. Army at Ft. Belvoir, Va.

For the many years he free-lanced as an illustrator, his writing of novels was, out of necessity, only a part-time endeavor. Then, in the late 1950's he decided to devote full-time to his work, which was published by McMillan in 1963. It was one of the few novels that was accepted in its manuscript form, Mr. Fleischmann relates. The book is now available in paperback.

His latest publication, "The Cherokee Removal," was published in May of this year, and Mr. Fleischmann is currently engaged in writing his second novel, which he will call "Cherokee Boy."

Suburbia reads something like a travelogue this morning. So many families have just returned from visits to all parts of this great nation, including stopping points on the sandy shores of Florida and the sunny west coast.

It also seems everyone is home just in time for the weekend activities, which include the Nebraska-Colorado game, greeting trick-or-treaters on Halloween, and perhaps the first taste of a true Nebraska winter with temperatures dropping.

Mr. and Mrs. G. E. Pokorny have returned to their Country Club Terrace home following a three week visit in Florida. When they arrived at St. Petersburg, Fla., they were warmly greeted by their son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Donald L. Pokorny. Of course, Richie, their five year-old grandson was also on hand for the occasion.

The fivesome took two days of the visit to fly to Miami Beach, Fla., for some sightseeing. Among the highlights of the trip were visits to Cypress Gardens and Coral Gables.

Mr. and Mrs. Vladislav Sobotka also have returned to their South Brook Summit home from visiting their family in the western part of our country. Accompanying them on their month-long trip was their daughter, Miss Janet Sobotka.

The first stop was Richland, Wash., where they spent 18 days with their son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Duane Sobotka. Much of the time in Richland was occupied with the Sobotka's five grandchildren and their one great grandchild. The grandchildren are Judy, Jill, John, Jeff and Mrs. Dave Sheeley, who is the mother of the Sobotka's great-grandchild, John Dave Sheeley, III, who is three years old.

From the state of Washington, the Sobotkas headed even further west, to California. The first landing in that state was San Bruno, where they spent five days with Mr. Sobotka's brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. H. E. Breckey. From there they flew to Redwood City, Calif., where they visited Mr. Sobotka's brother and his wife, Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Sobotka. During the stay in Redwood City, the Sobotkas took a day to visit Mrs. Sobotka's sister, Mrs. Marie Dunlop, in Tuolumne, Cal.

Mr. and Mrs. Roberto Esquenazi-Mayo will welcome a very special guest into their Park Manor home on Saturday morning. She is Miss Esther Esquenazi-Mayo of New York City, N.Y., Mr. Esquenazi-Mayo's sister. Their house guest will spend two weeks in Lincoln.

Children of Southwood residents will don their masks and costumes on Saturday evening for the traditional pre-Halloween trek to the Southwood Club House where they will be entertained at a Halloween party — and the festivities and games will be typical of the season.

The youngsters will be treated to a hayrack ride — weather permitting, of course — and the remainder of the evening will be spent bobbing for apples and marshmallows by the older children while the very young guests will be fishing, walking the plank, tossing the beanbag, peanut racing, playing in the duck pond, and bowling.

Mrs. John Goessman is chairman for the children's party.

The Southwood Women's Club will be treated to a tour of the Governor's mansion this morning.

Returning once again to the forthcoming Husker football date, we heard that Mr. and Mrs. Larry A. Witt will be entertaining Buffalo fans at a pre-game brunch on Saturday morning. The brunch guests will be Mr. and Mrs. Ed Snider of Denver, Colo.

Entertaining guests has become a more and more common pastime at the Witt home recently. Just last Monday, for instance, Mrs. Witt's aunt, Mrs. Anna Boyd of Salem dropped in for dessert and a brief visit.

The wedding will take place in December.

BOOKS— “The American Left”

By CYNTHIA JOHNSON

In the opinion of author Loren Baritz, the members of the historical profession in the United States have failed thus far to produce a total and viable interpretation of the American historical tradition as it is manifested in political, social and economic trends. It goes without saying that the realization of such an all-inclusive goal is, at best, improbable, given the complexity of the subject matter; however, Baritz, who is a professor of history at the State University of New York at Albany, believes that substantial progress could be made towards a more integrated analysis, if scholars were to focus their attention on a long-neglected topic — the history of the American “Left.”

It is in the hope of beginning to fill the void left by fellow-historians that Baritz has edited a compilation of primary source material drawn from the speeches and writings of a variety of American radicals. In addition, the author, whose leftist sympathies become quite apparent, states his desire that the book also serve an educative function for contemporary radicals (how better to learn than through the mistakes and misfortunes of others?); and that it demonstrate to the general public the high level of a great deal of radical thought.

“The American Left: Radical Political Thought In The Twentieth Century” (Basic Books, Inc.), which will be published in mid-November, includes a variety of sources, quite a few of which have not previously been readily accessible. By the editor's own admission, he has concentrated on “working radicals,” thus omitting those individuals (e.g., Thorstein Veblen and C. Wright Mills) whose radicalism falls into a more purely theoretical classification.

Baritz's approach to his subject is primarily chronological, although he organizes his selections into topical divisions within the sequential framework. Among the topics examined in the work are Revolutionary Unionism, Sexual Oppression, The Communist Party, The Literary Class Struggle, The Black Beginning, The Cold War, The Black Liberation Front and The New Left.

The bulk of the book is, predictably, concerned with the developing struggle between labor and capital in the United States. Beginning with the formation of the IWW in 1905, Baritz chronicles the emergence of various organizations dedicated to the welfare of the working man; and the reasons for their ineffectuality (factionalism in particular) become increasingly apparent.

Two particularly illuminating sections deal with the cultural and political awakening of Black Americans. The author's brief synopsis of developments surrounding the multi-faceted Civil Rights movement of the 1960's is especially well-executed.

Women's Liberation (both the 1910 and 1970 varieties) is also explored; as are campus unrest and pacifism as they were influenced by adherents of the radical left.

From the author's point of view, the birth of the “New Left” during the past several years heralds the emergence of a type of radicalism that is more native to American radicalism than is more native to America. “What was new about the Left of the sixties resulted from its own conscious attempt to junk that radical past which had led to puppeteering and to suicide . . . And that it was an American movement, although in step with an international student radicalism as well as with Third World insurgency, decisively marks off what is new about the new Left.”

Despite a number of omissions (especially lacking are a consideration of the post-World War II labor movement; and the phenomenon of non-urban radicalism), the book presents a lucid and useful look at a provocative topic. It is recommended not only for professional historians, but also for anyone who desires a better understanding of the totality of the American experience.

Around The Town

All we can say is — we wish that yesterday had been April Fool's Day. Had it been, then we could say we were only fooling when we said that the “Haunted House” and all of its ghosts and goblins had to do with a Lincoln Symphony Guild project. It hasn't. The Haunted House in all of its eeriness is the brain child of the Lincoln Community Playhouse Guild.

And now that we have brought the true facts to light we'll tell you who is doing what at the Haunted House which, by the way, will be open this evening from 8:30 o'clock until 9 o'clock, and on Friday evening during the same hours.

Mrs. William Schlaebitz is general chairman of all of the spooky activity and she has as her co-chairman. Mrs. Thomas Boatman. Mrs. Boatman's particular duties involve the skits and the talent that goes along with a tour of the house. Mrs. Joseph Badami is in charge of the treats; Mrs. John Wilson heads the staff of guides and Mrs. J. W. Rapp knows exactly what is going on in the box office.

We hear that Lee Schoonover was the master mind when it came to changing just a plain building into a haven for ghosts, witches and the like — and that he was assisted by an excellent crew. Sam Van Pelt and Stephen Enersen, we are told, wrote the scripts.

A festive event has been planned for this evening at the Lincoln Country Club, and it will be attended by the Beta Theta Pi Alumni members and their wives. Doubtless there will be a generous sprinkling of Betas from the active chapter, also, since the dinner was planned to honor an illustrious brother.

It is Burton Folsom who is to be honored. Mr. Folsom, who served his fraternity as District Chief for a period of time, was elected as general (national) Treasurer of the fraternity back in 1964. Before he had completed his term, however, the General Secretary died, and Mr. Folsom was asked to leave the treasurer's office and take on the responsibilities of the General Secretary. Mr. Folsom has held that office until he relinquished it recently at a convention held at Sun Valley.

Mr. and Mrs. Paul Hyland are in charge of the dinner arrangements.

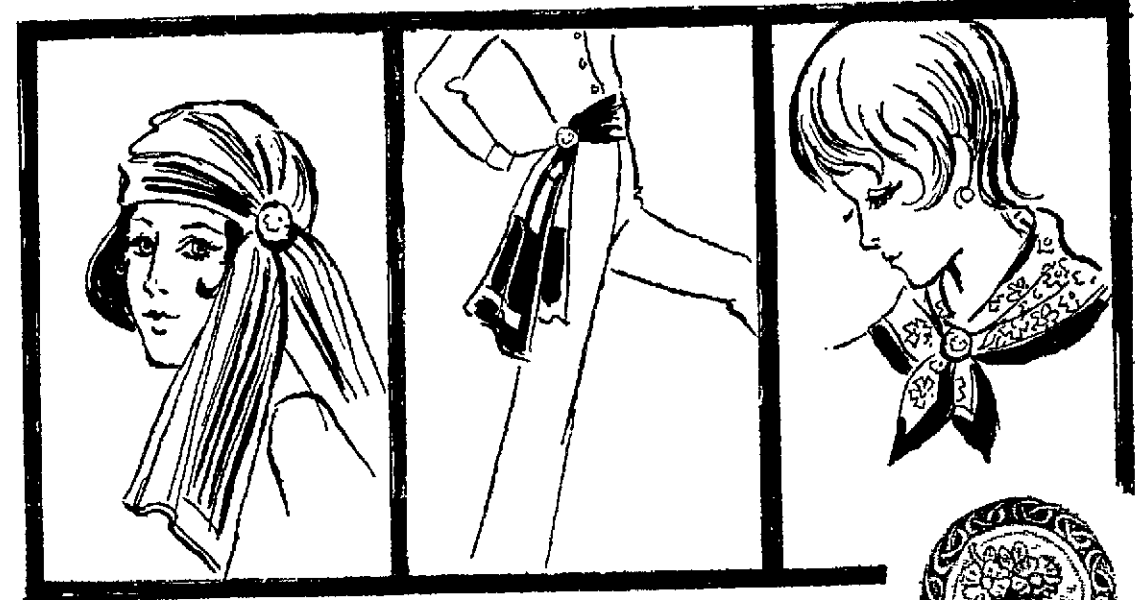

November brides-elect are in the spotlight at the moment, and among one of the very popular ones is Miss Jane Elizabeth Hendry whose marriage to James Dobler will be solemnized on Saturday afternoon, Nov. 20.

The long series of courtesies for Miss Hendry began last Saturday afternoon when Mrs. E. H. Moses and Mrs. Paul Suder were luncheon hostesses at Scott's Pancake House. The soon-to-be bride was presented with a hostess gift.

And on Saturday evening Miss Hendry and Mr. Dobler shared honors at a family dinner for which Mr. and Mrs. John Hedge and their son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Ellis were hosts and hostesses at the Lincoln Country Club. The guest list included members of the families.

Last weekend was only a forerunner of the parties to come—and we'll tell you about them on another day.

Exercises, Questions And Answers

This exercise will help you if you want to slim your calves. Stand facing a chair. Place the heel of your left foot on the chair, both knees straight. Keep your knees straight and pull the toes of your left foot back toward your body as you bend forward trying to touch your fingertips to your left toe. Raise trunk and relax. Continue slowly. Repeat this exercise with your right heel on the chair.

Q. What causes split ends on the hair? How can I prevent this?

A. Extreme dryness can cause it. Harsh permanents and dyes can also. Overexposure to the sun during summer months is often the villain. If your hair is dry, preventative measures are cream rinses and shampoos, hot oil treatments and conditioners, plus protection from the hot sunlight when outdoors. Cold winter winds also have a drying effect.

If you have split ends cut them off and use any necessary protective measures so that they will not occur again.

Q. Please answer a few questions for my diet club.

1. How long does it take to firm saggy buttocks, to firm flabby buttocks and a thigh bulge?

2. What causes a bulge?

3. Will facial exercises cause wrinkles?

4. Can exercise make a large bust smaller?

Answer for number one: the only way you can lift a sagging bust is to develop the underlying muscles with exercise. This takes several months, with exercises faithfully done.

Answer for number two: a bulge is caused by either sagging muscles or an accumulation of fatty deposits. Usually both are involved.

Answer for number three: the reason for doing facial exercises is to prevent or decrease wrinkles, not make them. However, it is important to first lubricate the face well with an oily cream or an oil.

Answer for number four: the sure way to reduce the bust is to lose weight. However, deposits of fat are less apt to accumulate over busy muscles. Exercises which include stretching are helpful. I have prescribed this exercise many times in my column because I have found it to be one of the few which firm but decrease the bustline. AND, it is so easy!

You just stand on your own two feet (separated), and raise your arms forward, shoulder-height and shoulder-width apart, palms facing. NOW, swing your arms down and back, pulling up with the arms as much as you can, palms turned toward the back of the room. Swing forward and continue.

I think neighborhood diet or exercising or reducing clubs are wonderful. Why not organize a group in your neighborhood?

Q. My problem is that my ribs stick out and my breasts are too small. The rest of me seems to be in good proportion. What can I do?

A. The prominent ribs may be due to a nutritional deficiency in infancy and early childhood. You can perhaps improve the condition by strengthening your abdominal muscles and learning to hold your tummy in. The only way to increase the bust itself is with a gain in weight. You can increase your bust measurement by developing the underlying chest muscles with exercise.

Stand facing the wall, an arms length away from the wall. place your right hand on the wall, right arm straight. Lift your left leg back and up as you bend forward at the waist. Your body should now be in a straight line from head to left toe, with both knees straight, toe pointed. Return to starting position and repeat slowly eight times. Next raise your right leg back and up as you bend forward. Return to starting position and repeat eight times. Do not be discouraged if it requires a little practice before you can raise your leg to the straight position. This exercise is good for toning leg and stomach muscles.

Q. Can sagging breasts be lifted with surgery?

A. Yes, the condition can often be improved by surgery. If there is only a slight degree of sagging the remedy is simpler. An implant is inserted to raise the contour of the breasts. If the sagging is extreme this is more complex and a two-part operation is required. Talk with a well qualified plastic surgeon about this.

Opening lead — jack of diamonds.

The nature of the game is such that you can sometimes make a loser disappear into thin air.

For example, look at this hand where it would seem you must lose a diamond and a club to go down one. But if you handle your cards right, you can bring home the slam in a perfectly logical fashion.

West leads the jack of diamonds, which looks suspiciously like a singleton because you have the ten, so you go up with the ace and draw three rounds of trumps ending in dummy.

You then play the four of diamonds, hoping that East will go up with the king, in which case you would follow low and later discard the queen of clubs on dummy's queen of diamonds.

But East plays low on the diamond and you win the trick with the ten. West showing out.

Since you still have a diamond loser, it might seem that the final outcome will depend upon the success or failure of a club finesse. But actually you can tell by this time that the slam is in the bag, and it does not really matter where the king of clubs is located.

You play a spade to the king and return a club from dummy. When East follows low, you finesse the queen.

If the finesse succeeds, you have twelve tricks then and there. If it fails, you still have twelve tricks, for whatever West returns you will get rid of your diamond loser on dummy's jack of clubs.

No matter how East-West slice it, there is no way for them to stop one of your two losers from simply melting away.

ABBY

Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: My son, 16, makes obscene telephone calls. I heard him make one of those calls the other day and confronted him immediately. He told me he had done it several times and thinks it's "funny."

I received an obscene phone call many years ago, and I know it's no laughing matter. I have tried to impress this upon my son without success.

I can't prevent him from using the phone, and there is no way I can check on him. I am hoping he'll outgrow it, but he seems to take a perverse pleasure in this hobby of his. I hate to see him upset anyone, and of course, I hope he doesn't run into any difficulties with the police. Have you any suggestions?

MRS. M. C.

DEAR MRS. M.C.: Your son's "hobby" is not as innocuous as you seem to think. It is an indication that he could have serious emotional problems. I urge you to somehow manage to have your son examined psychiatrically. At 16, he's no longer a "boy"; he's a young man who desperately needs help.

DEAR ABBY: I have one master's and two doctorates, but that doesn't mean I know all the answers.

My question: How can I discourage the friendship of a couple who call constantly, inviting my husband and me over?

We are in education and so are they, but they are the world's biggest bores! If we never had to see this couple again socially we would be delightfully liberated. I have run out of excuses.

CHICKEN

DEAR CHICKEN: Phony excuses and insincere regrets convey false hope. In the future, simply say, "Thank you for the invitation, but we can't make it."

Know Your Antiques

largest American firms making furniture about 1860. A 11 foot high secretary-bookcase made by this firm showed how different life really was. Furniture was heavy and massive. It stayed where it was placed as the owner seldom moved.

Q. How can I sell antiques to settle an estate? How can I get a fair appraisal? I don't believe that an antique dealer can give an objective appraisal if he is a perspective buyer. How can I learn about oriental items? There are no oriental experts on this subject in our city.

A. If you are not familiar with the items in a collection, it is very difficult to sell antique. There are qualified appraisers in most large cities. They are listed in the phone book as appraisers. Of course, they do have a fee and the charge for only a few items is usually high. If you have a limited number of items take them to a reliable antique dealer and offer to pay for a written appraisal. You must either trust the shop or go to more than one.

Oriental antiques and specialized collections often require special help. A large estate should be handled by a qualified appraiser from the nearest large city. A national collection of antique appraisers exists and a list of their appraisers is available. Write: Appraiser's Assoc. of America, Inc., 663 5th Avenue, New York, New York 10022. A few items can be taken to a nearby museum that might be able to help.

Library study will always help. Sometimes a conversation with a knowledgeable collector can be of value. Appraising antiques requires special training. You would not expect a doctor to advise you about your broken leg as a favor. Antique appraisers are professionals.

This Victorian secretary-bookcase was made of rosewood by Mitchell and Rammelsburg of Cincinnati, Ohio. It is 10 feet high, made about 1860. (Newark Museum, Newark, N.J.)

Queen Victoria's dominating personality and taste not only influenced England, but also America. The English furniture of Victorian time was elaborate and ornate. American Victorian was a bit less elaborate, but it was still highly decorative.

Victorian has been out of favor with collectors for many years. During the past few years, a new appreciation of the artistry of the period has developed. It still takes a very large room and a high ceiling to accommodate the furnishings of the 1830s.

The finest Victorian furniture was made in the east. Through the years, the center for design moved to the midwest. Mitchell and Rammelsburg of Cincinnati, Ohio, was one of the Wage Controls Freeze Teachers Earning Rate

The State School Boards Association said Wednesday the federal government has ruled it is the earnings rate, and not the payment rate, that has been frozen for teachers work-

Challenge To Wage Freeze Is Expected

The Nebraska State Education Association is expected to announce Thursday the filing of a lawsuit challenging the wage-price freeze as it affects teachers.

The association has called a news conference for Thursday morning, saying it would cover legal aspects of the freeze as they relate to teacher raises.

The announcement of the news conference follows statements by association officials recently that a suit would be filed sometime this week. The officials, however, had declined to disclose any facts of the case saying they would be made public at the time the suit was filed.

The federal government has ruled any teacher raises negotiated and approved prior to Aug. 15, when the freeze was imposed, could not go into effect unless at least some employees were working under the new wage scale before then.

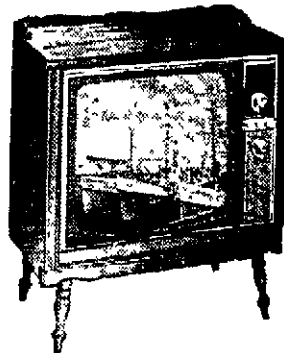

Teachers organizations, however, have contended the raises were actually negotiated for the most part before the freeze was imposed and should be allowed to go into effect.

'MINIMIZE'

During the post-World Series celebrations in Pittsburgh Oct. 17, said Sgt. Francis Quinlan, the president of the city's Fraternal Order of Police, city officials tried "to minimize the seriousness of what actually occurred." Quinlan said the celebration, triggered by the Pirates' win, resulted in serious injuries, numerous crimes and damage that would approach $250,000.

Obscenity Law Enforcement Seminar Slated

Approximately 70 attorneys and state officials are expected to attend Friday's seminar on obscenity law enforcement sponsored by Gov. J. James Exon and the Nebraska County Attorneys' Association, according to John L. Sullivan, the governor's administrative aide.

The seminar which will be held at the Nebraska Center for Continuing Education, Sullivan said, is intended to show prosecuting attorneys the most effective means of filing suit against "porno shops, skin flicks and lewd entertainment."

Sullivan said rather than attempt to delineate what is obscene from what is not, the seminar will emphasize the use of public nuisance statutes in successful prosecutions.

Survey Reported

Washington (UPI) — The Job Corps said it will survey enrollees and staff members at 16 of its 65 centers to find out how many of them use drugs.

The program which will last all day will include historical background, current appellate decisions trends in future cases and applicable Nebraska statutes.

The featured speaker at the banquet will be Charles H. Keating, Jr., a Cincinnati attorney who founded Citizens for Decent Literature Inc. Keating is noted for his disagreement with the findings of the Presidential Commission on Obscenity and Pornography of which he was a member.

Those conducting the seminar will include Gary P.

Bucchino, Omaha's city prosecutor who has been involved in Omaha's topless entertainment cases; James J. Clancy, chief legal counsel for Citizens for Decent Literature; and Cleveland attorney Richard M. Bertsch, member of the CDL legal staff.

Among others scheduled to attend are Omaha Mayor Eugene Leahy, Lincoln Mayor Sam Schwartzkopf, State Sen. Glen Goodrich of Omaha and State Sen. William Hasebrook of West Point.

Sullivan also indicated that some interested attorneys from Council Bluffs and Sioux City, Ia., will attend.

First Time Both Unbeaten

For the first time in the 63-year-history of the series, Nebraska Wesleyan and Doane College are both unbeaten going into their clash Saturday night.

The 7-0 Plainsmen and 5-0-1 Tigers meet at Simon Field in Crete for a probable bowl bid and the Nebraska Intercollegiate Athletic Conference title.

In past years only one of the two was undefeated for their game, the other team always had at least one loss. And both coach Ray Best of Doane and coach Harold Chaffee of NWU didn't figure their ball club would be unbeaten this late in the season. With several key starters gone and their spots being filled by freshmen, Best and Chaffee weren't looking just for wins.

But the freshmen on both teams have developed along with returning lettermen and squad members into strong teams.

Wesleyan holds a slim 26-25 lead in the all-time series with four ties. Doane has narrowed the gap by winning the last five games.

Last NWU Win In 1965

NWU's last win came in 1965 with a 13-0 victory and that completed a three-year streak of shutouts.

The Plainsmen blanked the Tigers, 13-0 in 1963 and 14-0 in 1964 prior the 1965. Shutouts have been a part of the series as the loser in the first 18 games of the series failing to score.

The widest margin of victory came in 1968 with Doane winning, 77-6. When Best was a senior and playing for the Tigers, his team prevailed, 69-0, the largest point spread coming on a shutout.

Doane started fielding a football team in 1891 and Wesleyan in 1896 but the two didn't play each other until 1908. The two didn't play each other during the two wars accounting for just 55 games in the series.

Although the rivalry has "calmed down quite a bit," according to Best, it's still one of the most colorful in the state.

"Whichever team was the visitor used to try and burn their school's initial in the home team's field," Best recalls. "It was just a tradition with the students.

"During my junior year at Doane we caught a bunch of Wesleyan students attempting to burn a W in our field and we held them as hostages in the dorm," he said.

"But the school officials made us let them go. We wanted to hold them there all weekend, including during the game," smiled Best.

Lookouts Almost Worked

Last year NWU officials stationed lookouts in the Magee Stadium pressbox on a 24-hours-a-day basis. The lookout was posted two days before the game and almost worked.

The morning of the game the lookout left thinking it would be safe since the game was that afternoon. But someone sneaked onto the field and marked a huge peace sign with the chalk boxes used for marking the field.

A bunch of NWU students worked with vacuum cleaners on the chalk and got the chalk picked up before kickoff.

Best says he doesn't know if there will be any antics linked to the rivalry tried this year, but he admits Doane will be on the lookout just in case. "This doesn't have much to do with the game, but it's always been part of the rivalry," Best explained.

Way, Morrow Make History In Battling To First Draw

By RANDY EICKHOFF

Star Sports Writer

John Way and Lee Morrow made history in the Lincoln boxing smoker at Pershing Auditorium Wednesday night when the two battled to a draw before an estimated crowd of 250.

Way, a Lincoln policeman fighting for the Branding Iron boxing club, seemed to have control of the bout as he deftly side-stepped Morrow's bull-like rushes, and scored time and time again with a flickering left.

But in the third round, Morrow, fighting for Lincoln

Saylor, finally caught up with the wiry fighter and scored with heavy sledge-like blows forcing Way to clinch to stay on his feet.

"There should have been a winner," Eldro Hansen, boxing co-chairman for the sponsoring Lincoln Master Barbers Association said following the announced decision. "We fight under the Golden Gloves rules and under those rules, there should have been a winner declared. One fighter should have beaten the other."

Despite the unpopular decision, the fans were able to watch two technical knockouts

Frosh Game, Giant Rally Scheduled Friday At NU

Nebraska's unbeaten freshman football team entertains Wichita State Friday, starting at 1:30 p.m., as part of the gala preliminary to the Cornhusker-Colorado game Saturday.

Following the freshman game, the NU students and all Husker fans — under the sponsorship of Corn Cobs and Tassels — will launch a massive pep rally.

The world's largest pep rally is slated to start at 4 p.m., in the East Stadium, according to Cobs president Gary Kuklin.

NU cheerleaders, pom pon girls, Cobs, Tassels, adult fans, students and the Cornhusker band will join in the pep rally that will also feature some members of the Husker team.

ABC-TV will film the Nebraska pep rally as part of its two-day coverage and the rally will be a feature of the Saturday pre-game show.

"Last year they had thousands cheering the Longhorns at Texas in their pre-game rally, and we want to show we're really No. 1 in yelling as well as football," Kuklin said. "We want as many Nebraskans as possible to come to the frosh game and stay for the rally."

Nebraska freshman coach Jim Ross has shuffled his starting lineups some, but most of the same players who helped whip Missouri, 32-23, at Columbia will carry the load against Wichita State.

Quarterback Terry Luck will have Greg Pilkington at I-back, Rich Bahe at wingback and Tom Ruud at fullback.

A tripleheader football weekend is on tap for Capital City high school gridiron fans.

The defending Class A and B state champions kick off the action at Seacrest Field Thursday night when Southeast and Pius X tangle.

Northeast hosts Bellevue Friday night and East entertains McCook Saturday evening at the same site. Lincoln High is the only local club on the road this weekend, traveling to Omaha Westside for a Friday night encounter.

Southeast took a giant step toward successfully defending its Class A crown with a convincing 34-18 victory over crosstown rival East last weekend. East had been rated No. 1 this fall since the start of the current campaign.

Pius X, on the other hand, has failed to crack the Class B ratings this year after ruling the roost in that division a season ago.

"We can't take Pius lightly, however," Southeast coach Frank Solich admits. "I just hope our kids realize how much a letdown would hurt. They've worked real hard all year to get where they are. It would be a shame to let it all go out the window now."

Pius coach Vince Aldrich admits his Thunderbolts face an uphill struggle. His club has been able to muster just one victory in six starts, while Southeast boasts a 6-1 record.

"We're not going to roll over and play dead, however," Aldrich assures. "We realize the problem we face. Our first task will be to try to contain and stop Southeast's speedy backfield runners."

It was a task East failed to accomplish as Egbert Thompson and Mark Michel spearheaded a strong Southeast ground attack that chewed out 279 yards in huge chunks.

"We had a few people banged up in that East game," Solich reveals. "Offensive tackle George Newsham has had his leg put in a cast after suffering a knee injury. I'm sure he is lost for the season."

Offensive guard and defensive end Kermit Severin also has a bad knee, while defensive back Lee Clark is hobbling because of a bruised heel.

"There may be some chance that Severin will play," Solich says, "but Clark is very doubtful."

—GOOD COVERAGE PLANNED—

No Gimmicks Set To Stop Branch

By HAL BROWN

Star Sports Editor

Nebraska isn't planning any new gimmicks to stop one of the nation's most dangerous punt returners, Colorado's Clifford Branch, but NU head coach Bob Devaney is hoping what has worked for the Huskers thus far this season will hold up in Saturday's contest against the Buffs.

Branch has returned 20 punts for 318 yards, three of them for touchdowns while the Huskers haven't allowed a punt to be run back against them all the way.

"The best thing we can hope for is that we can punt the ball high enough that our coverage can get down under it," Devaney said Wednesday.

"Some people have tried kicking away from him," he added, "And if your kicker is accurate enough you can do that like Missouri did with our Johnny Rodgers.

"We're counting on getting good coverage from our punting team as we did last week at Oklahoma State. We've faced some good punt returners this season and our coverage has been good.

"The thing that makes Branch more dangerous than some others we've faced is his speed."

Branch, a 9.3 sprinter, also gives the Buffs a dangerous pass receiver.

"He's particularly dangerous on the deep patterns," Devaney explained. "What you've got to try to do is not let him go deep on you, but they haven't really thrown to him that much this season."

Branch has caught 11 passes for 289 yards and two touchdowns.

"Where he's really dangerous is if they get the ball to him in the open field and he gets you in a one-on-one situation" the Husker coach added. "You've got to try to keep him from getting you in that one-on-one situation."

Devaney also recalled that Colorado coach Eddie Crowder had thrown something new at the Huskers each of the past two years.

"Two years ago they hurt us with reverses and last year they put Branch at a wingback and used him on option plays which hurt us," he recalled. "There's no way of telling whether they might come up with something new this time.

"But what you've got to do when you're playing a team such as Colorado is be prepared technically for them and hope you're also ready mentally.

"This is definitely the best offensive team we've played. They've got to be with the people they've got."

The Husker coach isn't putting too much stock this week in what happened to the Buffs at Oklahoma.

"They beat a good Ohio State team and a good LSU team," he says. "They didn't look good against Oklahoma, but no one else has either.

"Colorado looked as good against them as Texas did and Texas is still a good football team.

"This game should prove what kind of a team we have and it should also tell us how good the teams are we've been playing and how good the teams are that Colorado has played."

NU Only By 2-1

For the first time this season Nebraska is not a unanimous choice of the three college football forecasters for the two major wire services.

The Associated Press' Will Grimsley picking a 31-28 Colorado upset says, "A team that can knock over LSU and Ohio State is capable of beating anybody. The Cornhuskers' string and resulting pressure grow taut."

But The Associated Press' Herschell Nissenson and United Press International's Charlie Smith are sticking with the Huskers.

Smith sees a 38-13 NU win, commenting, "The Cornhuskers are so balanced, they should be dieticians."

Nissenson in choosing the Huskers says, "Buffs have beaten LSU and Ohio State on the road and lost to Oklahoma. Cornhuskers' Bob Devaney says his boys aren't looking ahead to Oklahoma on Thanksgiving Day. They better not."

Huskers By 20

The nation's oddsmakers have made Nebraska a 20-point favorite in their Saturday clash with Colorado.

In other Big Eight games, Oklahoma is favored by 28 over Iowa State, Missouri by 14 over Kansas State and Oklahoma State by two over Kansas.

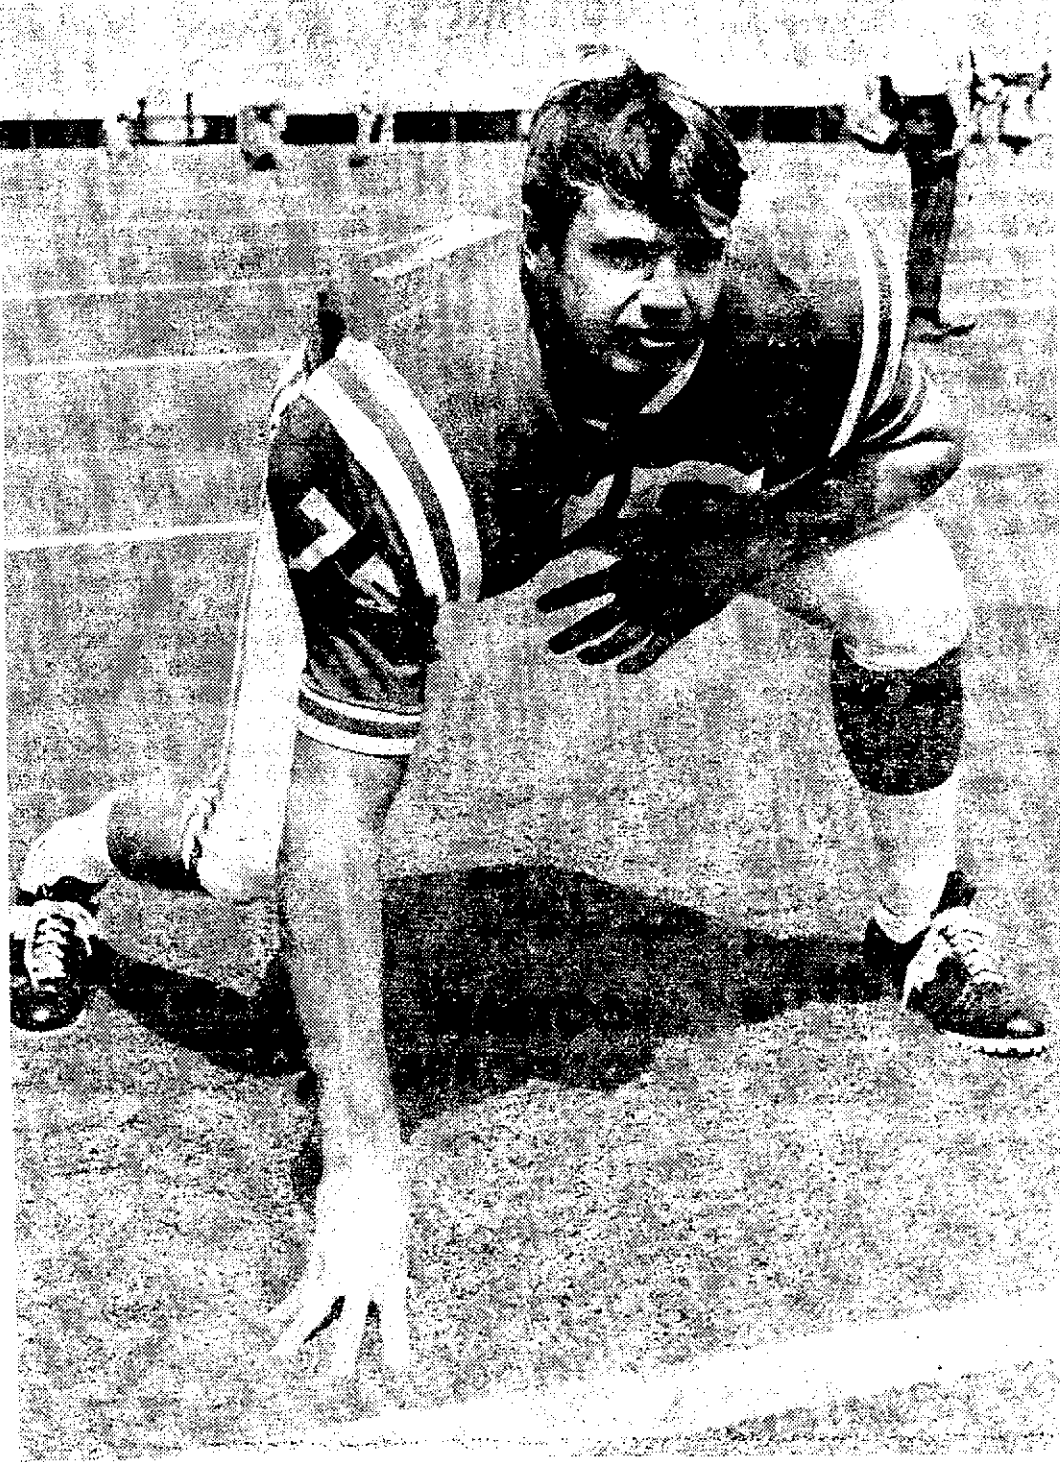

Big 8 Featured

Two Big Eight games, Iowa State at Oklahoma and Colorado at Nebraska, will be among five contests featured on Sunday's ABC-TV's College Football highlights show.

El Paso, Tex. (AP) — Defending national champion Nebraska, which blasted Georgia 45-6 in the 1970 Sun Bowl, heads the list of schools being considered for the 37th annual Sun Bowl Dec. 17, the selection committee said Wednesday.

Bids may be extended to schools after Nov. 20.

HUSKER 'ROUGHNECK' . . . Larry Jacobson.

Huskers' Jacobson Real 'Roughneck' On Defense

. . . OIL RIG WORKER IN SUMMER

Calling Nebraska defensive tackle Larry Jacobson a "roughneck" probably wouldn't draw much disagreement from opposing defenses. Nor would it from the men he worked with last summer.

Big Jake worked on an oil rig near San Francisco — an occupation carrying the nickname of "roughneck."

There were a lot of Oklahomans and Arkansans on the crew according to Larry — all rabid football fans. Larry says they gave him a hard time all summer because, they said, Nebraska "lucked out" in winning the national championship last year.

"It kind of ticked me off," the 6-6, 250-pound all-America candidate says. "I just decided I'd have to come back this fall and prove it to them."

If he and the rest of the Huskers haven't proven that to the rest of the "roughnecks," they have to nearly everyone else as they've been ranked first in every poll for the past seven weeks.

The Sioux Falls, S.D. senior has played a major role in the Huskers' rise to the top in the last two seasons. On the way to the Huskers' national title last year, Larry participated in 54 tackles (12 for losses totaling 93 yards), recovered four fumbles and broke up a pass.

Halfway through the 1971 season, he has 31 tackles to his credit nine behind the line for losses totaling 45 yards, plus a brokenup pass.

But according to Larry, statistics don't always tell the story for a defensive tackle. "We don't go by who gets the most tackles," he says. "Whether I get the tackles doesn't mean I didn't do the job."

Grads Will Meet At Same Place

More than 175 members of the "N" Club, past and present, are expected to attend a reunion in Lincoln Saturday morning.

The club is composed of men who have earned athletic letters at the University of Nebraska.

While the "N" Clubbers are prepping for the Nebraska-Colorado football game, later in the day, so will an equal number of University of Colorado alumni.

Both groups meet at the same time at the Radisson Cornhusker Hotel.

"No problem," says Skip Ward, general manager of

As he explains it, much of the time the defensive lineman's job is just to get the offensive lineman out of the way or plug up the interior line so the linebackers can stop the runner.

What is the Black Shirts' basic ideas when they're on the field?

Jacobson puts it this way: "We just gotta put it to 'em (the other team) right away and get all thoughts of scoring out of their minds. It's just a question of getting in the right frame of mind. We know we have the talent."

Larry, an accounting major, also thinks this year's defense is better than last year's. "I don't know why, I just do," he says. "I think we just get better every year."

That, he says, is because of experience. "With experience, you just react a lot faster," he explains. "If something happens, a sophomore will think . . . a senior will react."

Larry says he became a reactor just before the Orange Bowl game last year because the atmosphere was so emotional that he just had to react. Incidentally, Larry says that was the best game of his career.

When Larry came to Nebraska as a freshman out of O'Gorman High School in Sioux Falls, he went through the same screening process nearly every Husker freshman goes through.

He was tried one week on defense and another on offense. He didn't show up too well as an offensive lineman and has been on defense ever since.

Larry looks back on it and says jokingly, "I think I just messed up on purpose so they wouldn't put me on offense."

Bluejay Standout During '20s Dies

Omaha (AP) — A former Creighton University football and basketball star, Gordon W. Diesing, died Tuesday in an Omaha hospital.

Diesing, a 1924 graduate of Creighton Prep, played in the backfield on the Creighton football team and played basketball under Arthur Schabener.

He was a Creighton law school graduate and an attorney in Omaha for many years. He also directed the Sacred Heart International Foundation which gave financial aid to various Catholic centers.

OU Offense Leading Big Eight

... BUT ON DEFENSE IT'S ALL PACED BY NEBRASKA'S BLACK SHIRTS

Kansas City, Mo.—This shall be known as the week the Big Eight created its own "Believe It or Not".

What really happened in that mind-boggling, offensive flash-flood involving Oklahoma and Kansas State is as hard to grasp as were the backs. To be sure, new NCAA and Big Eight records came when the two teams combined for 1,347 total yards (785 by Oklahoma and 562 by K-State), 956 rushing yards, and Oklahoma had 711 rushing. The Sooner total offense of 785 is a league mark.

But, broken down, would you believe:

1 A team averaging 11.6

yards every time it attempted to run the ball, with two of its backs, Greg Pruitt and Jack Mildren, ripping off 15.5 and 14.2 yards each time they tried?

2. A team never facing a fourth-down situation, scoring 75 points, and not getting a "cheap" touchdown (in fact, Oklahoma had to go at least 49 yards for every one of its 11 six-pointers)?

Just as hard to comprehend is what happened to Kansas State in defeat. The Wildcats might have been the first to gain a team-record 562 yards of total offense and have the ball enough to roll up 32 first downs and still lose by 47 points.

To further put in perspective the magnitude of the 711 rushing lengths by the Sooners, that accumulation was only 61 short of the former NCAA record for TWO teams. This burst gave Oklahoma a nation-leading 2,920 rushing yards after six games, just 990 off one of the Big Eight's oldest records, the rushing output of 3,910 by another Sooner team, the 1956 outfit.

With a per-game, total-offense reading of 562.2 now, the Sooners need only 1,445 more in their last five games to top the 4,817 standard held by that 1956 team, which also averaged 45.6 points per game. Now Oklahoma leads with 47.7.

Defensively, it is still all Nebraska. The Huskers lead in rushing defense (69.9), pass defense (105.9), total defense (173.7), and scoring defense

(5.7), as well as rank No. 1 in passing (187.6).

Doane Rises In Polls, Grabs Seventh Spot

New York (UPI) — Doane College rose another notch in the National Association of Intercollegiate Athletic Division II ratings to seventh.

The ratings released Wednesday are still led by Westminster Pa. Last week the Tigers from Crete were ranked eighth and were 13th the week before that.

—DOMINATE IN SCORING— National Statistics Big Eight-Flavored

New York — The national collegiate football statistics are taking on more of a Big Eight flavor each week with several Big Eight players among the leaders in most individual statistical categories.

Five Big Eight backs are among the top 25 in total offense with Nebraska's Jerry Tagge 10th, averaging 193.3 yards per game, Oklahoma's Greg Pruitt 13th at 185.5, Colorado's Ken Johnson 15th at 180.8, Iowa State's Dan Carlson 19th with 166.3 and Oklahoma's Jack Mildren 23rd at 163.7.

Four are among the top 25 in rushing with Pruitt second at 185.5 yards per game, Iowa State's George Amundson 10th at 117.7, Mildren 22nd at 103.2 and Colorado's Charlie Davis 24th at 99.1.

Two Carlson 14th with 12.7 completions per game and Tagge 16th with 12.3 per game, are among the passing leaders and Oklahoma State's Jim Ben is second in punting with an average of 46.5 per kick. Oklahoma State's Dick Graham 12th with 4.5 catches per game, Nebraska's Johnny Rodgers, 21st with 4.0, and Kansas John Schroll, 26th with 3.9 are among the pass receiving leaders.

In scoring by kicking there's Oklahoma's John Carroll on top with 8.3 points per game. Iowa State's Reggie Shoemaker, fifth with 7.2 points, and Colorado's J. B. Dean, 10th at 6.3.

John Shelley of Oklahoma ranks seventh in pass interceptions, averaging 8-10ths of one per game.

Rodgers ranks eighth in punt returning, averaging 16.8 yards per return and Colorado's Cliff Branch is ninth with an average of 16.2.

Missouri's Mike Fink is 12th in kickoff returns, averaging 12.8 yards per return.

But it's in scoring where the Big Eight has the biggest domination, numbering six players among the country's top 20.

Pruitt is third averaging 13 points per game, Mildren is fifth at 10, Kansas State's Bill Butler and Nebraska's Rodgers tied for seventh at 9.4, Carroll 16th at 8.3 and Nebraska's Jeff Kinney tied for 29th at 7.7.

Sherrer Rewrites Record Book

... EX-SOONER TOP RUSHER AT UNIVERSITY OF HAWAII

Honolulu (AP) — Larry Sherrer may have missed his chance to play for a national championship football team, but he is happier to have "grown up" as a Sherrer, now rewriting the rushing record book at the University of Hawaii, spent his freshman year at the University of Oklahoma.

"When Oklahoma first started doing well this season," Sherrer recalled, "I thought maybe that I should have stayed. But it's worked out."

"You do a lot of growing up in college. Everyone told me not to come, so I did it all on my own.

"That's what I really like," he said.

Sherrer's freshman year at Oklahoma was in 1968, when he shared tailback chores with Roy Bell and took his handoffs from Jack Mildren.

Sherrer said he did not like running off-lackle most of the time, which was the Oklahoma style during those days of Heisman Trophy winner Steve Owens. The former Sooner from Durant, Okla., wasn't happy alternating with Bell, and admitted that he did not get along with the coaches.

"It was the way they treated the players," he said. "They did a lot of yelling, and ran a lot of guys off. They tried to dehumanize you."

However, the soft-spoken tailback quickly added, "I've heard that things have changed there."

He said he has seen his old mates winning on television this year. "I think I would have been playing if I had stayed," he said. Oklahoma is ranked second in the latest Associated Press Poll.

Sherrer chose Hawaii because he would not have to sit out a year before becoming eligible. But he found there were other good things about the 19,000-student campus.

"I like the openness here — it's more of a liberal atmosphere," Sherrer said. "You have a good chance to mix with people of other backgrounds, which gives you a better outlook."

Sherrer's running has helped give the Hawaii Rainbows a better football outlook. Last season, the school posted a 9-2 record, with Sherrer rushing for 722 net yards despite missing two games with an ankle injury.

In five games this year, Sherrer has scored seven touchdowns and rolled for 637 net yards and a 6.2 yards per carry average.

The 210-pounder set a school record of 196 rushing yards against Santa Clara two weeks ago. Last weekend he ran 180 yards against New Mexico Highlands.

His big chance for national exposure will be Hawaii's season finale — a Dec. 4 home date against a top-ranked Nebraska. Sherrer said the Rainbows are looking forward to the game.

"A lot of players here were recruited by Big-Eight schools. It's the level we think we should be playing," he said.

"No one ever heard of some of the schools we play against."

Handicapped Unit Elects Edgar Hester President

The board of directors of the Nebraska Center for the Handicapped Wednesday elected Edgar Hester, vice president of King's Food Host, as president of the organization.

The election came at an organizational meeting for the group, which proposes to build an indoor horseback riding arena for handicapped youngsters and adults on a site south of Pioneer Park.

Other officers are Prof. R. D. Warren, vice president; Mrs. Charles Vyskocil, secretary, and William C. Smith, treasurer.

Elected to the board of directors were Mrs. Larry Enersen, Mrs. Burnham Yates, Mrs. Fred Wagner, J. J. Marx, Louis Finkelstein, Mrs. Arthur J. Weaver and Dr. James K. Styner.

Mrs. Vyskocil said the center, which is to be in operation by next fall, will be the second such facility in the U.S.

It will be patterned, she said, after a similar facility in Michigan and several such centers in Great Britain.

Designed especially for children with all types of handicaps, it will help youngsters develop physical qualities through therapy and will build "self-esteem."

A "total rehabilitation program" involving the University of Nebraska is also planned, she said, and the facilities will include a portable swimming pool and other physical education equipment.

Staff members will include a director, a physical therapist, a nurse and "qualified instructors and volunteers," she added.

Edgar Hester
Elected President

Boys for the Kearney Training School and trustees from other institutions will be allowed to train as "stable help" to develop that skill, she said.

Eventually, permanent housing will be built on the site, she said, but "hostels" in Lincoln will be utilized until that is accomplished.

The $500,000 necessary for the center's construction will be solicited privately and through government grants, she said.

Berry Cited For Contempt

Omaha (AP) — The manager of the Pussy Cat Theater in downtown Omaha, Richard Berry, was cited Wednesday for contempt of court by Douglas County District Court.

Death Of Woman Ruled Accidental

Columbus (AP) — Platte County Attorney Ray Baker has ruled the death of Mrs. Frances Swan, 49, accidental death by drowning.

Mrs. Swan was found dead in her car in the Loup canal northwest of Columbus last Thursday morning.

Baker said Wednesday he had received a pathologist's report confirming the cause of death.

Clock Provides Work Break For County Employees

Omaha (UPI) — A suitcase emitting a "ticking sound" left in the Douglas County Courthouse late Wednesday forced a brief evacuation, until it was determined to be a false alarm.

The Douglas County Sheriff's Office said a check by the Omaha police bomb squad revealed a ticking alarm clock in the suitcase.

"It's just one of those things that happened," a spokesman at the sheriff's office said. "Someone left a suitcase with a clock in it. It was ticking and, of course, everyone is very conscious today."

The courthouse was evacuated about 4 p.m., but was back in business by about 4:15 p.m.

The spokesman said the incident was apparently not deliberate, but that the suitcase was not immediately claimed.

Action On LES Authority Deferred

Lincoln Electric System (LES) board members Wednesday deferred action on adopting documents outlining in detail the authority granted to LES Administrator Walter Canney until they have had an opportunity to discuss the matter with Nebraska Public Power District (NPPD) officials.

The documents were presented board members after considerable questions arose from LES employees on whether Canney or Jim Ekstrand, NPPD employee who operated LES under the city-NPPD management contract, had top authority.

LES Board Chairman Neal Tyner said NPPD General Manager D. W. Hill told him that NPPD has no disagreement with the documents.

However, Ekstrand said he understood NPPD officials wanted some changes in the documents because of apparent conflicts with terms of the management contract.

In other business, the board authorized the employment of consultants as needed on a cost of work performed basis to study power supply and to coordinate and direct an overall distribution study.

The board voted to authorize the employment of Stanley

Consultants of Muscatine, Iowa, to analyze power supply status, investigate alternatives and make both near-term and long-term recommendations on adequacy, sources and costs.

The members also authorized the employment of John E. Olsson to coordinate a study of overall distribution making maximum use of LES personnel and existing pertinent reports.

WISHING WELL

by William J. Miller

Here is a practical little game that will give you a message every day. It is a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is six or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add three. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner of the rectangle and check every one of your key numbers left to right. Then read the message letters under the checked figures, gives you.
